Jury Returns Verdict Without Capital Punishment

CLENCHES FISTS AS HE HEARS SENTENCE

Judge Says Stinnett Responsible for His Wife's Crime

Prince Frederick, Md., Dec. 2 (P)—Walter Stinnett was sentenced tonight to life imprisonment for the "wild orgy" slaying of William Warren Gantt, 55, wealthy and eccentric tobacco grower.

The verdict of first degree murder without capital punishment was returned after a jury of farmers and neighbors deliberated three hours and 30 minutes. The 24-year-old farm youth who admitted participating with two women in the shooting of Gantt July 12 after a week-end party stood bewildered.

Only a sharp exhalation and clenched fists marked his reaction. Chief Judge Walter J. Mitchell, sitting with Judges Joseph C. Mattingly and William M. Loker, after receiving the verdict from foreman Eugene Walton, said:

"It is a sad commentary on the pace the present young people are going. Your sad plight may be an example to other young men to listen to their mothers and wives. We hope in the years to come you will atone for your crime."

Wife Sent To Prison

"We are confronted with a sad set of circumstances. You are a young man on the threshold of life. I knew your father and two uncles as industrious farmers. As far as I'm concerned the jury has left me no discretion. They have relieved me of responsibility since the sentence is mandatory."

"It is a sad commentary that your wife preceded you to prison just a few minutes ago. Out of your crime came hers."

Mrs. Evelyn Bajowski, 18, who is also charged with the murder, bowed her head and showed her first emotion during the trial when sentence was pronounced. Mrs. Margaret Abell, 18, mother of a 3-year-old daughter and childhood sweetheart of Stinnett, sat stunned. She also faces murder charges in connection with Gantt's death.

Mrs. Abell, whom Stinnett accused of firing the first shot in a confession which he later repudiated, will go on trial here next Friday. Mrs. Bajowski won a change of venue to Frederick county.

All three are estranged from their spouses.

Mrs. Blanche Stinnett, 20, wife of Walter, was sentenced to 18 months in the House of Correction shortly after the jury went out to deliberate, for stealing $960 from Gantt's estate.

Five Given Suspended Sentences

She pleaded guilty when arraigned last month, explaining she found the money cached on a sill in Gantt's barn last August 17 and had given away $400 to five persons. The five, including her parents, were given suspended sentences on the (Continued on Page Two)

Maryland's Law Making System Is Flayed by Lesser

Says Present Set-up Unsystematized; Urges More Local Power

Baltimore, Dec. 2 (P)—Enactment by Maryland's legislature of local laws affecting specific counties drew criticism today from the National Municipal League today as an "unsound" practice.

Judge Oscar Leser, former Baltimore jurist and defeated Republican nominee for U. S. Senator in the last election, contended the state's law-making setup was unsystematized and urged more power for local administrations.

A special committee, Judge Leser told a county government roundtable, should be named by the legislature to determine whether proposed laws are purely local or applicable to all counties.

"We have no system, no classification of towns and cities, no general laws," he asserted. "This situation should be corrected and the local units should have a larger measure of control over their own affairs."

"Then, should a mistake be made, it could be promptly corrected, instead of remaining as an evil to be removed by the next legislature."

Wilson Ballard, Baltimore County Roads Engineer, told the roundtable counties of Maryland would, in his opinion, find that the County Manager plan or its equivalent would solve many of today's administrative problems.

Private Funerals For 22 Children Killed in Wreck

Parents of Victims Decide Against Holding Public Rites

Salt Lake City, Dec. 2 (P)—Parents of the victims of Utah's school bus disaster which took 23 lives decided tonight to hold private funerals rather than have mass rites in historic Mormon Tabernacle.

Most of the 22 school students killed yesterday when a freight train, speeding a mile a minute through a snow storm, rocketed into the bus, were children of Latter-day Saints farmers.

Bus driver Farrold H. Silcox, 29, the one man who might have been able to explain the crash, was the 23rd victim.

An investigation will be made by Interstate Commerce Commission representatives, enroute here from Washington, Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad officials announced.

Salt Lake County General Hospital officials set the toll today at 23 dead and 16 seriously injured. Four are in critical condition.

County Attorney Harold E. Wallace said no inquest would be held. Investigators agreed only Silcox could have explained the accident.

The exact death list had fluctuated because of the condition of the bodies and the difficulty Jordan district school officials had in accounting for the more than 40 occupants of the bus.

L. W. Nielson, the principal, said all now have been accounted for and that the portions of bodies picked up along the roadside—at first believed to indicate additional victims—belonged to identified victims.

Of the four children in a critical condition at the hospital, Dr. R. J. Alexander said "whether they recover depends largely on any possible complications that arise."

James Repp Is Convicted For Shooting Mills

State Contended Mills Was Wounded Following a Dispute

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 2 (P)—A jury late today convicted James Repp, 45, on charges of shooting his neighbor, Frank Mills, 32.

He was tried on an indictment charging he fired shotgun charges which struck Mills in the leg on September 11.

The state contended Mills was shot as a result of a dispute over hunting squirrels on his farm.

Repp testified he had been arrested for trespassing on Mills' land and warned to stay away. He asserted that on the day Mills was wounded he spent the afternoon at his home. His daughter gave similar testimony.

Mills, his leg in bandages, was carried into court to testify. He asserted he was certain of his identification of Repp as the man who fired at him.

Bones in Mills' leg were shattered by the shotgun charge.

Kimball, W. Va., Dec. 2 (P)—A slate fall in the Carswell mine killed Charlie Yates, 42-year-old negro.

Navy's General Board Endorses New Type Engineering Equipment

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, Dec. 2 (P)—Military circles heard today that the Navy's general board had endorsed new type engineering equipment which figured in a long-smouldering controversy over warship designs and construction delays.

Overruling critics of the equipment, an official report to Secretary Swanson this week recommended use of high pressure, superheat boilers in the Navy's six new 35,000-ton battleships, among other craft. Efficiency and economy were stressed.

Secretary Swanson had referred the controversy to the board after reports of a shakeup of inspection and survey board officers reached President Roosevelt's attention.

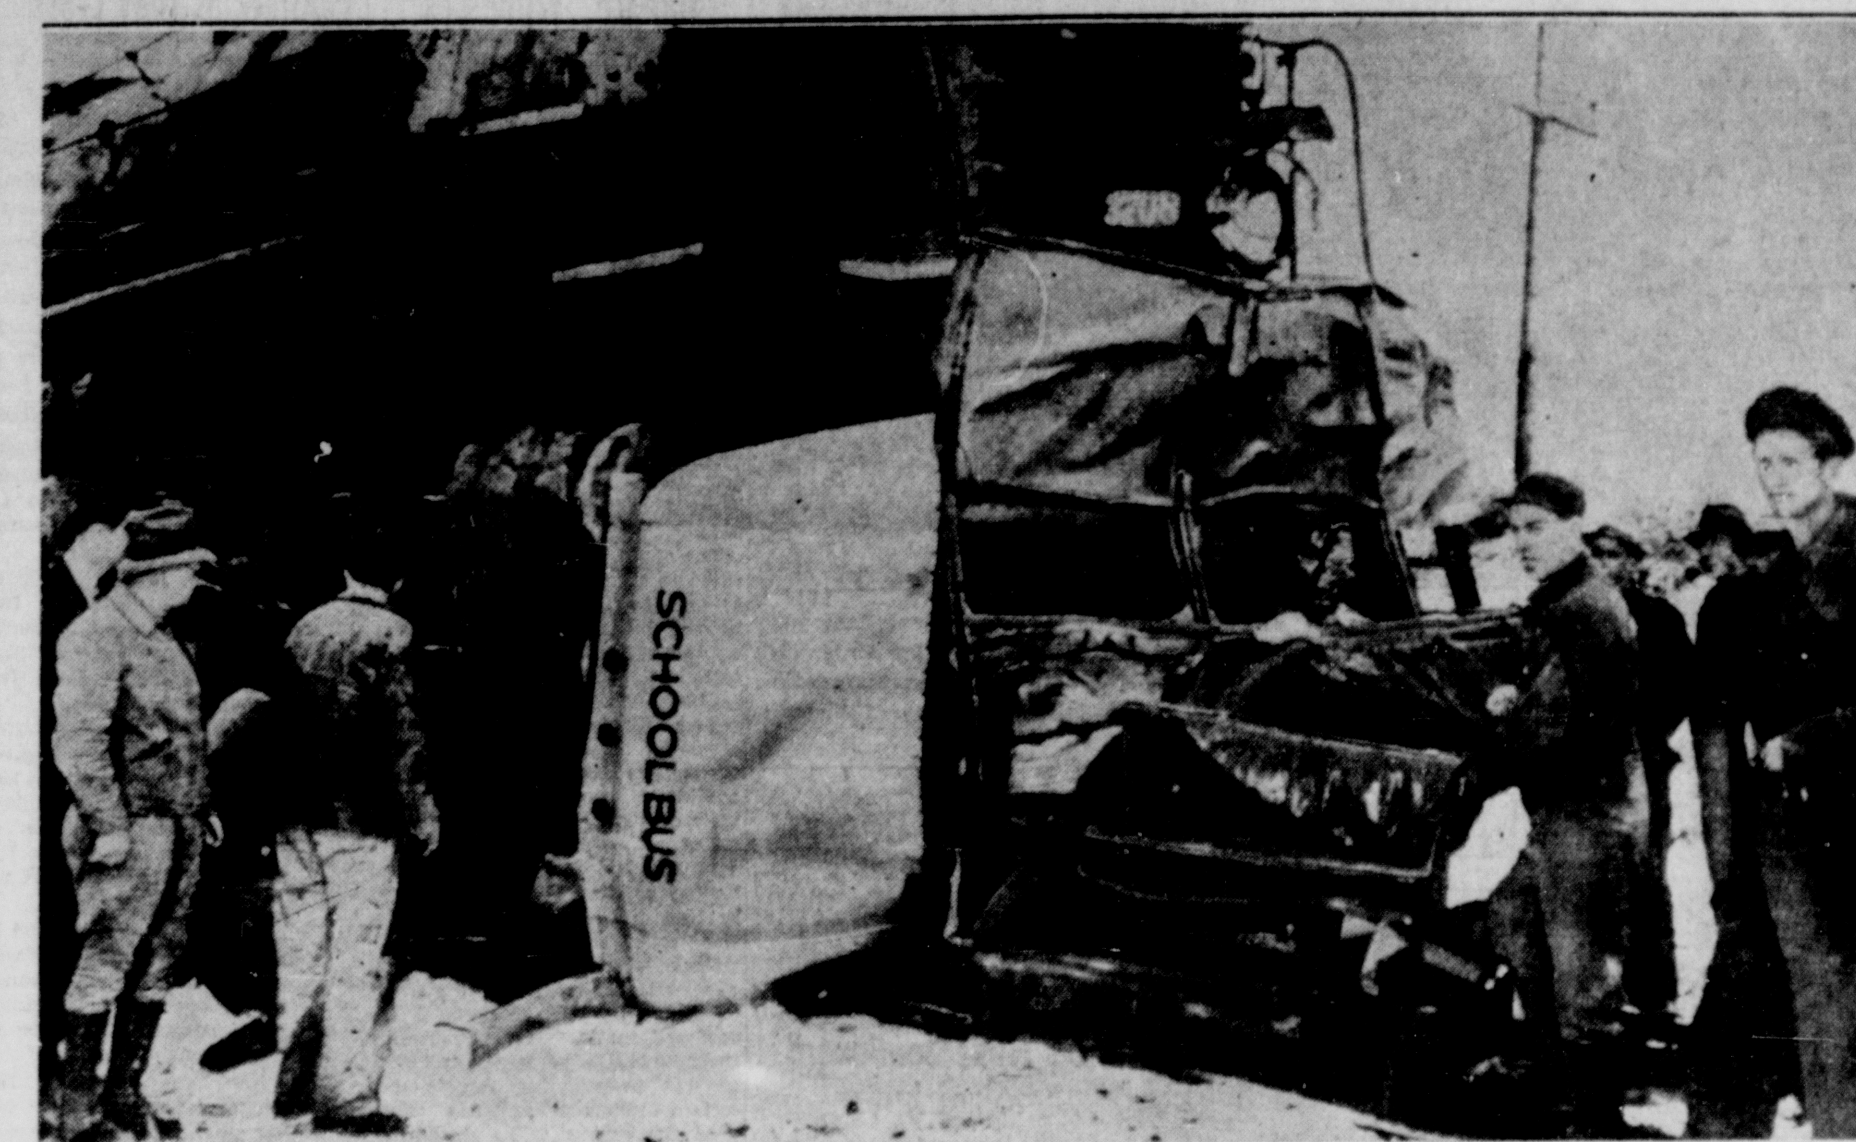

Officers Criticize Equipment

Some officers had criticized the equipment as experimental and unproved, and a factor in construction flaws and delays which have plagued the Navy since 1933.

The disclosure coincided with indications the construction controversy might reach Congress. Representative Maas (R-Minn.), ranking minority member of the House Naval Committee, expressed the opinion the Navy Department "needs some kind of a shakeup."

Maas said he would reintroduce

Where Twenty-Three Died In School Bus Grade-Crossing Crash

Salt Lake City, Utah—Crumpled against the engine which crushed it lies the mangled wreckage of the school bus which carried twenty-three school children and driver P. H. Silcox to death in grade crossing crash near Salt Lake City. The bus load of children was en-route to the Jordan high school. An early morning snowfall obscured the vision of the driver, and a speeding freight train ploughed into it at a rural grade crossing ten miles south of Salt Lake City. Fifteen others were seriously injured and nine less seriously. Some of those killed were so badly mangled that identification is difficult.

Hunt Young Man After Economist Is Found Beaten

Visited German-born Exchange Expert in New York Suite

New York, Dec. 2 (P)—Police hunted tonight a man suspected of an attack on Dr. Max Morgenshtern, German-born Wall Street economist, who was found unconscious in his suite in an East River apartment house today.

As Morgenshtern lay in a coma, his head badly crushed, police learned from apartment employees that a young man had visited the economist briefly this morning.

Morgenshtern, 50, a foreign exchange expert, had worked in Wall Street for 27 years. He was born in Frankfurt-On-Main, graduated from Freiburg University, and was an economics professor before coming to the United States. Police quoted associates as saying two of his sisters recently fled from Germany to Luxembourg.

Morgenshtern was found unconscious by a maid. Other residents of the apartments—among them Lady Bethel, English noblewoman—said they heard a disturbance in Morgenshtern's apartment early this morning.

Killed by Train

Clarksburg, W. Va., Dec. 2 (P)—A Baltimore and Ohio freight train struck and killed John Charles Gonsorchik, 43, early today as it went into a siding. Railroad police said they believed Gonsorchik had stepped onto the siding to avoid the oncoming train.

Mary in Bed Today

The girl remained in bed today, and relatives were caring for her lest she develop pneumonia as a result of her experience.

Police left the vicinity of the home this morning after a number of them had interviewed her. The girl's younger sister, Lucy, had rushed home on Wednesday evening and said that some men in a truck carried Mary away after Lucy had eluded them.

Mary said they drove her within half a mile of her home yesterday and released her after she had convinced them her father was unable to pay any ransom.

She said she had not been attacked but had been kept blindfolded on a mattress in the hut throughout the period of her captivity.

At Washington, two men who called at a police station to claim a truck which the police had found and towed to the station were detained for questioning. The men explained that, being jobless, they had been making their home in the truck while trying to find work.

Legs Badly Scratched

In further comment on the case tonight, Miss Brown's father declared that her legs were badly scratched and her nose torn off when she reached home last night.

"Those kidnappers should be apprehended for protection to other people, as well as for what they did to my daughter," he said.

The stories told by Mary and Lucy check in every detail, he said, adding that they both sound "100 per cent o. k. to me."

Police Fail To Find Any Clues In Brown Case

Cannot Corroborate Young Girl's Story of Abduction

Mary's Father Declares Kidnapers "Should Be Apprehended"

Oxon Hill, Md., Dec. 2 (P)—Police indicated tonight that if they do not find evidence in a short time to corroborate 18-year-old Mary Brown's story of her abduction, they will withdraw from the case.

Major Elmer F. Munshower, superintendent of the Maryland State Police, said:

"We will stay with the case long enough to satisfy ourselves that there's nothing more we can do, and then there will be nothing else to do but leave it."

The young student returned to her home last night clothed only in a tattered slip, and said she had been held in a lonely hut by kidnappers since the previous afternoon.

None of the investigators who reported to headquarters late in the afternoon had found any evidence by which they could check the girl's story.

William B. Brown, father of the girl, said this morning that she had not been harmed in any way and that her body showed no sign of injury. Police said it was likely that anyone who had passed through the underbrush between the place where Mary said the kidnappers had released her and her home would have received scratches on the legs.

Robert Bready Confesses He Shot His Father

Minister's Son Claims He Was "Too Drunk To Remember"

Bainbridge, O., Dec. 2 (P)—Sheriff Joseph Vincent said tonight that Robert Bready, 29, had confessed shooting to death his pastor-father, Dr. Russell H. Bready, 62, while in a drunken stupor.

The sheriff said young Bready told him the shooting took place during a scuffle "somewhere near their home" as his father was taking him for a walk to "sober him up."

Young Bready was quoted as saying the details were too hazy for him to recall.

Earlier Prosecutor Lester S. Reid had quoted young Bready as saying he had been "too drunk to remember" what had happened.

The well-known Methodist Episcopal minister, once mayor protem of Pontiac, Mich., was found shot in the head in a vacant lot two blocks from his parsonage shortly before dawn today.

Twenty-nine-year old Robert Bready, held in jail at Chillicothe, related, prosecutor Reid said, that he recalled his father walking him about the streets trying to "sober him up." He remembered nothing more.

"I've definitely decided to charge him with homicide, but the degree has not been determined," Reid said.

"Nothing has been uncovered yet to warrant a first degree murder charge," declared Reid, who said the son admitted he was "too drunk to remember much of anything."

During Questioning, Young Bready

asked for liquor, saying: "It's the only thing that will help me remember what really happened." He was given coffee and became more coherent.

Mrs. Bready died last July. The pastor's survivors include another son, and two daughters.

Robert Bready is divorced.

Arsonist and Two Men Serving Murder Terms Will Ask for Parole

Baltimore, Dec. 2 (P)—A Hagerstown arsonist and two persons sentenced for murder will apply for freedom next Wednesday at hearings before Parole Commissioner J. Cookman Boyd.

John Murray was sentenced to 10 years in prison in 1932 for setting a storehouse and lumber yard afire in Hagerstown. He confessed starting 12 other fires over a period of seven or eight years, Boyd said.

Milton K. Ausherman, of Frederick county, serving 14 years, and Maurice McIntyre, Baltimore City negro, serving three years, were sentenced for murder. Both were convicted of second degree murder.

Also up for hearing is the case of William Wallace, of Howard county, whose life term sentence for assault was reduced to 10 years by former Gov. Albert C. Ritchie on January 7, 1935.

Ten other applications will be heard.

California Gas Chamber Exacts Double Penalty

Several Witnesses Describe Dual Executions As "Horrible"

Suffering, Judging From Men's Faces, Showed Intense Pain

San Quentin, Calif., Dec. 2 (P)—The lethal gas chamber, operated by disapproving prison officials, was used in California for the first time today to execute two of five "hard boiled" convicts sentenced to death for murder in attempting to escape from Folsom prison.

Albert Kessel, 29, and Robert L. Cannon, 30, walked composedly into the chamber after smoking cigars and taking "shots" of whisky; were bound to metal chairs and enveloped in a thick cloud of poisonous gas for more than 15 minutes.

Dr. L. L. Stanley, Prison Physician, said Cannon died 12 minutes after his first inhalation of the gas, and Kessel in 15½ minutes.

"Hanging," said the veteran prison physician, "is simpler and quicker."

Warden Court Smith, witness of 100 hangings, and opponent of capital punishment, said nothing, but he previously had referred to the process as "terrible." He left the prison for the day immediately after completing supervision of the execution.

Nazi Editor Discloses Plan To Make Emigration of Jews Possible

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Berlin, Dec. 2 (P)—A prominent Nazi editor disclosed today plans were being studied for making Jewish emigration possible by return for increased German exports.

Although he declined to outline specific details, the editor said the project had advanced to the point where Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, director of the four-year economic plan, could announce it soon.

The editor, who is close to Goering's group, explained the idea behind the scheme as follows:

Jews Need Foreign Exchange

"Jews need foreign exchange to get out. We haven't any. Hence other nations must supply it. These nations, however, will insist that Germany should repay these sums from possessions left behind by German Jews."

"There is only one way we can repay—through goods. Therefore the problem of ridding ourselves of Jews and for Jews to make immigration possible comes to this:

"How great a quantity of additional German goods are foreign nations prepared to buy from Germany? They can have all 650,000 Jews and half-Jews if they will give us enough export orders."

Meanwhile, iron fences enclosing Jewish burial plots were being torn down to increase the German supply of scrap iron and newspapers took up a campaign against persons who sympathize with Jews.

Remove Cemetery Fences

The remaining Jewish publication in Germany, Juedisches Nachrichtenblatt, appealed for the removal of the fences "as a great project for beautifying Jewish graves" and said, "inasmuch as the German Reich's supply of scrap iron must be increased we want voluntarily to make this material available for re-utilization."

In Ulm, placards reading "Judenknecht" ("Jew's Hireling") were affixed to stores and homes of persons whom the Ulm newspaper called "noxious enemies of the common weal."

Der Arbeitsmann, organ of the National Labor Camp Service, said: "What makes our blood boil is the fact that right in our midst there are still so-called fellow Germans who stab their own nation in the back by their attitude on the Jewish question."

Opium Smuggler Is Indicted by Jury in New York

Solomon Gelb Termed World's Biggest Narcotic Dealer

New York, Dec. 2 (P)—A federal grand jury has indicted Solomon Gelb, 41-year-old restaurateur, world-traveler and luxury-lover, on charges of smuggling vast quantities of narcotics into the United States.

"He's the biggest importer of opium in the country and one of the biggest dealers in the world," said Major Garland Williams, head of the Treasury Department's Narcotic Squad, who disclosed the indictment. "In the last 15 years he has brought several million dollars worth of narcotics into the United States."

The indictment was made public after Gelb also known as "Solie Gordon" and by ten other aliases, was sentenced today to three years in prison and fined $2,000 on conviction of perjury.

A fabulous international figure, Gelb was reputed to have spent money with lavish abandon and to have paid $2,000 a year rent for a penthouse "as fantastic as a dope fiend's nightmare" while his parents lived humbly in a Brooklyn basement apartment.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Frank H. Gordon said Gelb had bribed customs officials and forged customs stamps.

Gordon said Gelb had testified his mother and father were dead and that he had no relatives, until treasury agents produced his mother's death certificate.

"She was thrilled to think that (Continued on Page Two)

Herbert Sees "Professional Pauper" Class

Tells Municipal League Relief Is Outstanding Problem

Baltimore, Dec. 2 (P)—An expert in governmental research predicted today a "professional pauper" class in the United States.

Carl P. Herbert, Director of the St. Paul Bureau of Municipal Research, sounding the warning during discussion of relief problems before the National Municipal League conference, added:

"No matter how business improves, relief will continue to be the outstanding problem in this country."

"We are living beyond our means so far as relief is concerned," he charged. "The total costs of the various forms of relief now approximate on the average the total tax collections for all local government purposes."

"It is self-evident that these costs are utterly beyond the revenue-raising abilities of the cities."

"The situation represents a challenge to every student of social processes in this country."

Herbert also asserted "the cost of relief has been obscured from the average citizen, partly because the cost has been deferred in many instances through borrowing and partly because of the mistaken impression that the cost of relief is not a burden upon the people when the money comes from Washington."

Hitler Is Not Worried About Future Germany

Discusses Greater Germany in Address to 30,000 Persons

SAYS YOUNG GERMANS WILL NEVER BE FREE

Declares New Generation Is Growing Up and Being Educated

Reichenberg, Germany, Dec. 2 (AP)—Reichsfuehrer Hitler told 30,000 Sudetenland Germans in a 55-minute campaign speech today that he was not worried about the future of Nazism because "the new generation is growing up and we are educating it."

The Fuehrer described all the various youth organizations in which young Germans are enrolled and said "they never will be free in their entire lives."

"And they are happy about it," he continued. "All the ridiculous prejudices, about which their fathers still may worry, slowly disappear from their vision. They see everything in a different light."

He said boys and girls first come into the Nazi organization at the age of ten, progress through the Hitler youth, Black Guards and Storm Troops, then through the works service and the Army and then back into the Black Guards and Storm Troops.

Makes Campaign Speech
"Wait one, two, three or five or ten generations," Hitler said. "I can say to the fossils of the present time:

"Nothing will be left of you, but they will stand a strong, healthy and united people which can protect its rights from anyone who would take them and will be master of its own fate."

Hitler spoke in connection with elections Sunday in which 30 new deputies will be chosen for the German Parliament from former Czechoslovak territory. He spoke in a hoarse voice, once broken by a cough as he described how all the old "idols"—Monarchism, state lines, Marxism and political clericalism—had failed to accomplish the birth of the greater Germany.

He devoted his talk to internal affairs, but sidestepped the Jewish issue.

Outlines Economic Program
He outlined his economic program as based on an increase of production rather than on an increase of pay. "Whatever more goods are produced accrue to the entire people," he said.

"Any idiot," continued the Fuehrer, "can print money if he is unscrupulous enough x x x my four-year plan is more difficult but better."

When Hitler referred to 1938 events his hearers chanted in unison "we thank our Fuehrer."

"This year," he said, "showed our common community spirit was such that we were ready to risk appeal to the sword to gain our demands. x x x These demands were most moderate."

Rabbit Fur-Racket Czar To Pay Fine 'Doing Time'

New York, Dec. 2 (AP)—Jacob ("Gurrah") Shapiro, 43, convicted racket czar of New York's $85,000,000 rabbit fur industry, today agreed to pay $200 weekly on a $15,000 fine while he is serving a 3-year prison sentence.

The swarthy, bull-necked little prisoner, described by FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover as "one of the most notorious criminals in the United States," was brought from the house of detention to the U. S. courthouse on a writ of habeas corpus.

Shapiro, who once boasted he could dispose of a federal indictment for $150, surrendered last April 14 following a nation-wide search for him and his partner, Louis ("Lepke") Buckalter, who is still a fugitive.

INTERIOR OF SCHOOL BUS IN WHICH 23 DIED

Salt Lake City, Utah—Shown here is the interior of the mangled school-bus which carried twenty-three persons to death on its last trip. The bus with its load of children was en-route to the Jordan high school. An early morning fall of snow obscured the vision of the driver who failed to see the speeding freight train. Fifteen other pupils were seriously injured, nine others not so seriously. Some of the bodies were so badly mangled that they are still awaiting identification.

Belgian Finance Minister Resigns

Action Taken by Max Gerard Prevents Fall of Government

Brussels, Dec. 2 (AP)—Fall of the Belgian government was averted tonight by the resignation of Finance Minister Max Leo Gerard after a break with Premier Paul Henri Spaak over Belgian economic policy. The resignation of Gerard, a liberal, followed conferences of cabinet members among themselves and with King Leopold in an attempt to end the crisis which started when Spaak, a moderate Socialist, embarked upon a policy favorable to Spanish Insurgents.

For a time it had appeared that Spaak would fall on the economic issue and then form a new government to demonstrate that he had the confidence of the King and country in both domestic and foreign policy.

However, Gerard's resignation, after an attack on the Government's fiscal affairs which are complicated by a flight of gold and a budget deficit of $40,000,000, cleared the way for Spaak to continue his plans for friendship with Insurgent Spain.

The Premier's decision to send an agent to Insurgent Spain had brought withdrawal of the Spanish Government Ambassador to Brussels and subsequent recall of the Belgian Charge D'Affaires at Barcelona.

Plan Parochial School Bus Transportation Bill

Frederick, Md., Dec. 2 (AP)—Legislation which would authorize Frederick county to appropriate funds for transporting parochial school pupils by the public school transportation system is being prepared for presentation to the coming legislature, Robert C. Pampel, Emmitsburg, announced today.

A new committee to sponsor the transportation plan will be named, Pampel said. Two members of a committee which has been working on the proposed legislation resigned, he said, following dissension over a proposal to use St. Euphemis' hall in Emmitsburg for holding a party to raise funds to finance the legislative program.

Those who resigned were Prof. Bernard J. Eckenrode, of St. Joseph's College, and Thornton Rogers, Emmitsburg Town Commissioner.

Sailors on Normandie Join in Strike

Le Havre, France, Dec. 2 (AP)—Sailors of the Liner Normandie defied a Government requisition order tonight and joined other crew members in a strike which French Line officials indicated might delay the vessel's sailing for New York tomorrow.

The remainder of the money was spent on clothing and entertainment she said.

Gantt who was pictured by Defense Attorney John W. Mudd and J. B. Grey, Jr., as dominating Stinnett, apparently placed the money in the barn for safekeeping the night before he was shot to death. State's Attorney Arthur W. Dowell, maintained during the trial that theft of the money which Gantt had prominently displayed during their week-end party, was the cause for the shooting.

"The murder was committed with premeditation and malice aforethought," Dowell told the jury in his summation.

Defense Attorney Mudd, asserting that Stinnett had the mind of a child, declared:

Wild Orgy Precedes Shooting
"It was a wild orgy which resulted so tragically in Gantt's death. The idea of getting the women for the party was originated by Gantt, and Gantt used Walter as a decoy. Walter is a country boy, young and attractive while Gantt was well over 50 and was not attractive to the girls. He was a victim of his own folly."

"The confession made by Walter after he was taken to Washington by State Police was made by a scared boy who had been on a wild rampage; who had been brought to Washington at night, who had been drinking several nights with little sleep."

Stinnett said from the stand that he was "dead drunk" asleep next to Gantt in Gantt's automobile. And awakened to see Mrs. Abell pointing a gun at Gantt who had fallen from the car, apparently still intoxicated, and was lying on the ground.

He said he lunged for the gun and that Mrs. Abell, Mrs. Bajowski, and himself tussled for the gun which discharged a bullet striking Gantt. No explanation was offered to show how Gantt received five bullet wounds.

Jap Troops on 150 Mile Front

Invaders Have Advanced 60 Miles Southward Since July

Shanghai, Dec. 2 (AP)—A Japanese army spokesman announced tonight that the Imperial Army in the Yangtze valley was arrayed on a curving 150-mile front between the Canton - Hankow and Kiukiang-Nanchang railways for an impending offensive further southward into Hunan and Kiangsi Provinces.

The infrequently reported Kiangsi operations apparently had carried the invaders about 60 miles southward since last July when Kiukiang fell to the upriver campaign toward Hankow.

The army spokesman said 2,000 Chinese had attacked a garrison at Tungshan, near the western end of the Kiangsi-Hunan line, but were repulsed, leaving 700 dead.

It was said the Chinese also attacked Kiangshan, about 70 miles northwest of Hankow, but likewise were thrown back with heavy losses.

Chinese forces—apparently guerrillas—were reported to have recaptured Chintung, a major city of western Shantung.

Junius A. Love Is Seeking New Trial

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 2 (AP)—Junius A. Love, former legislator convicted of assault with intent to kill, asked a new trial today on grounds new evidence had been developed.

His counsel made no statement on the nature of the new evidence pending arguments on motions for the new trial expected tomorrow.

Love is at liberty under $1,000 bond imposed after he was convicted early this week of shooting Ernest W. Corderman, a tenant in property owned by the 62-year-old former member of the House of Delegates.

Love said he and Corderman struggled for a gun after an argument about conditions in a store Corderman rented from him, and the weapon was discharged accidentally.

Both men were injured, a bullet striking Corderman in the arm, and another hitting Love's leg.

CIO Walkout Closes Fisher Body Plant

Flint, Mich., Dec. 2 (AP)—Fisher Body Plant No. 1, a center of activity in the 1937 General Motors sit-down strikes, was closed by a walkout of United Automobile Workers (CIO) today after union employees voted 3,434 to 433 to strike.

The strike was voted after a long dispute concerning demands of two departments in the plant for day wages instead of piece work pay.

General Motors Corp., of which the Fisher Body Co. is a division, said 6,400 men were affected directly. In addition, the final assembly line of the corporation's Buick plant suspended operations when its supply of bodies was shut off.

Officials of the Flint local of the UAW said the strike was authorized by the International union. General Motors spokesmen said the strike violated the Union's agreement with the Corporation.

Postponement Is Granted in Prison Trials

Reports of Attempts to Influence Witnesses Brings Delay

Philadelphia, Dec. 2 (AP)—A suggestion of attempts to influence convict witnesses in the Philadelphia County Prison "baking death" case came from the prosecution today as a State Supreme Court order caused postponement of the trials of 10 former prison officials on murder and manslaughter charges.

Assistant District Attorney John A. Boyle told the court he had been informed at least one prison official mentioned paroles to convicts summoned to testify about events last August when four men perished in super-heated punishment cells.

The disclosure was made in opposition to a request by former Deputy Warden Frank A. Craven that he and his attorneys be permitted to interview 21 survivors of the heat.

Chief Justice John W. Kephart rebuked Boyle for denying Craven access to these witnesses, and the Justice gave Craven's attorneys an additional two weeks to prepare their defense.

The trials were scheduled to begin next Tuesday, but Boyle announced that since Craven's trial could not be held until Dec. 20, the others also would be postponed.

Boyle accused Craven's counsel of a "last minute, desperate attempt to delay the trial." He said the over-cell survivors were exclusively Commonwealth witnesses and that he was investigating reports that certain unnamed officials "have been tampering with these witnesses."

"That is no reason for keeping counsel away from witnesses," Justice George W. Maxey commented. Nine others will go on trial with Craven. Former Superintendent William B. Mills and three guards are charged with murder; five other guards with manslaughter.

Americans Leave Spanish Conflict By Way of France

Narrowly Escape Bomb Attack as They Cross Border

La Tour De Carol, France (At the Spanish Frontier) Dec. 2 (AP)—The main body of American volunteers of the Spanish Government's International Brigades left Spain for home today, getting out of the country just a few hundred yards ahead of an insurgent bomb attack.

Still in formation as members of the Lincoln and Washington Battalions of the 15th International Brigade, the Americans, 332 strong including only unwounded soldiers marched across the border to La Tour De Carol in a well-publicized departure.

As they stood in the safety of the town's railway station, five insurgent planes plunged 18 bombs on the railway outside the Spanish border town of Alp, just a few hundred yards away.

These Americans have seen action in some of the heaviest battles of the war. A final group of about 300, including all wounded, will follow this unit soon, completing the repatriation of Americans under the Spanish Government's policy of releasing all its foreign troops.

The group was under command of 23-year-old Major Milton Wolfe, tall and gaunt, reputedly the youngest field officer in the Spanish Government Army. He declined to disclose his home address.

The Americans included Ted Schneider, New Yorker who left behind his physician-bridge 26-year-old Dr. Francisca Silvestre Lacruz, Benjamin Kutler, another New Yorker who found no use for the Phi Beta Kappa key delivered to him in the trenches; and Guy Thorpe, coal miner of Frankfort, Ill. who was glad he was going straight to Frankfort because "that's where my mother lives."

Republican Women Active

THOSE of the Republican faith hereabout will be pleased over the progress just reported in Washington of the National Federation of Women's Republican Clubs.

At a meeting of the advisory committee of the federation held yesterday in the national capital, the first since the Federation was founded last September in Chicago, that an additional twenty-two clubs have assumed affiliation with it, bringing the total up to 105. Plans were also made for active participation in the 1940 presidential campaign.

Maryland was represented at the meeting in the person of Mrs. Charles W. Lewis, of Baltimore, treasurer of the Federation. Mrs. Charles Payne, of Annapolis, president of the Federation of Republican Women of Maryland, who is also a member of the advisory committee, was unable to attend.

Chairmen of four sub-committees were announced as well as two new members of the executive committee which will be the directive group within the Federation. Mrs. Lewis, by virtue of her post as an officer of the Federation, is both a member of the advisory committee and of the executive committee. The members elected to the executive committee are Miss Marion E. Martin, executive director of the Federation and assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Miss Katherine Byrne, president of the Connecticut Council of Republican Women.

With Mrs. Lewis taking part, Mrs. Humbert Borton Powell, of Pennsylvania, was appointed chairman of the Program committee; Mrs. William E. Evans, of California, was named chairman of the Ways and Means committee; Mrs. Fred Murphy, of Michigan, was named to the club Extension committee chairmanship and Mrs. Albert Vestal, of Indiana, was given the chairmanship of the Publicity committee.

This increased interest and activity of women members of the party is another augury of a militant organization for the next campaign among many that have been lately noted throughout the country. Communities that have been lagging in Republican women's work may well take a hint from the work of the national Federation.

That Mobilization Plan

As it appears that national defense will be one of the major subjects to be considered by the new Congress, citizens might well give some thought on the matter.

The only question to be determined is just how far the nation should go in building up its defenses and preparing for war.

In all likelihood, the administration program will be built upon the so-called Industrial Mobilization Plan, which was embodied in a bill introduced in the House of Representatives at the last session of Congress, but which was hastily withdrawn from the Senate after much unfavorable public reaction developed.

That proposed measure would vest unusual powers in the executive. It would give the president, not only in time of actual war, but when he deems war is imminent, virtually complete control over business, industry, finance, labor. He could fix wages and prices, regulate hours and production, take over private property, censor the press, suspend various enumerated laws, draft as many men as he saw fit, assign them to factory work or compel them to go to the trenches, in effect suspend the functioning of labor organizations, and otherwise control the lives of the American people. Moreover, conscription would continue for six months after the president decided the emergency had ended.

As the Wheeling Intelligencer observes, the scope of this delegation of power is breathless. Henry L. Menckin has also pointed this out in a studious analysis of the measure. It would become operative at a threat of war and remain in force until the emergency had ended. It would give prodigious discretion to a man disposed to use it.

The Intelligencer points to a dispatch from Tokyo it says should be of interest to those who are giving thought to this plan, as well as those who haven't but should. It reports a statement of the Japanese vice minister of war that the army is demanding that the government enforce "article by article the national mobilization law." That law, which gives the government unlimited power to draft man power and economic resources, has been invoked only partially thus far. The military now is demanding that the government go the limit.

The Wheeling newspaper pertinently asks whether we want anything of this sort in this country, whether we are ready for such a surrender of democracy. It is, indeed, something to be pondered.

The Senate and Barkley

SENATOR ALBEN BARKLEY, it is indicated from Washington, as Democratic senators assemble after the election, not only will be seated when the Senate meets in January but also will be re-elected leader of the Senate.

Senator Pat Harrison (Miss.), has given no intimation of a purpose to make another bid for the leadership. Barkley, supported by President Roosevelt, defeated Harrison for the post by only one vote, after the sudden death of Senator Robinson (Ark.), at a critical stage of the last session of Congress.

Such probably is the prospect. The Democrats retain a top-heavy Senate majority. It is likely to be the inner party view, taken as a matter of course from the standpoint of practical politics, that it would be committing party suicide to refuse Barkley a Senate seat or, after seating him, to turn him down for the leadership.

But Barkley's right to the Kentucky seat should be clearly challenged. And the purport, if he is re-elected leader, must be publicly known.

The Senate committee on campaign expenditures, controlled by Democrats and headed by a Democrat, Senator Morris Sheppard (Tex.), reported conditions in Barkley's Kentucky campaign for renomination that should "arouse the conscience of the nation."

Activities of a federal machine for Barkley, including PWA officials and workers—and of a state machine supported by pension and highway funds, for Gov. A. B. Chandler—the committee said "imperiled the right to a free and undisputed ballot." And Barkley's outspoken opposition had been the chief cause of the defeat in the Senate, a few weeks before, of the Hatch bill to outlaw participation of relief officials in politics. He said he was entitled to have his federal machine in good working order, because Gov. Chandler would in any case be supported by his state machine.

The Senate precedents are still there under which fraud in primaries was held to vitiate the rights of senators afterwards elected to sit in the Senate. The issue will be sharply drawn between Democrats when they act on the Senate leadership.

Job Needs To Be Done

GENERAL REACTION to the news that the Dies committee will end its labors Dec. 16, unless Congress appropriates more money, is to feel that by all means more money should be appropriated.

The Dies committee has started something that needs to be finished. It has disclosed a great deal of communist, and fascist, activity that was not generally known and should have been known.

It is exceedingly worth while to get at the truth of these matters and all the more worth while because of the Dies committee's failure to do just that. We would favor continuing the inquiry accordingly but under another chairman and preferably under another committee altogether. We would like to see it done by a committee so determined to get at the truth and nothing but the truth that its work would be immune to the familiar charge of being "just Red-baiting."

That is the only helpful way of going about this. It is equally harmful to exaggerate the real importance of Communist sabotage or to leave it understood, as a careless and inept inquiry must, that its real importance always and invariably is exaggerated. There is no other subject of congressional inquiry, perhaps, that so demands the rational and factual procedure that will elicit the whole truth.

From Delaware come socks of a new, and indestructible steel fiber. Man, who once married to get his darning done, may now wed for love.

Mrs. Roosevelt completed her Christmas shopping before Thanksgiving. The First Lady probably is busy this week picking out valentines.

If it were still no more than a superstition, we'd believe in democracy, because you don't have to wear a uniform for it.

A glance at Europe's leaders reveals that all men do not live by bread alone, but a great many of them by crust.

The Browser Talks of Books

By MARSHALL MASLIN

As a reader the Browser thinks he has had his fill for a few weeks to come of the Spanish War. In one week he has read Oloffe de Wet's "The Patrol Is Ended" (Doubleday Doran) and "Man's Hope" by Andre Malraux (Random House). The first of these books is one man's disillusioning experience in the war... an idealist who confesses he has a distaste for machinery but goes to Spain to fly for the government, runs into the dark revolting side of men in war (as he would have run into it on the other side of the line, just as certainly) and finally was given 48 hours to get out of Spain. Beautiful sentences in confusing sequence. By a young man who "couldn't take it"—as neither, probably, could the Browser. Andre Malraux tells a different story. Here the distinguished French novelist who has been colonel in command of the International Air Force in Spain, tells of the first disorderly eight months of the war. Sensitive and strong, with a great respect for common men and a passionate desire for their freedom, Malraux has written a remarkable book. You may not agree with all his thoughts—for him the communists are the reinforcing steel of the Government army—but you will find stern beauty in this heroic novel.

You've been looking for a little fun, too? Very well, then. Have you seen the "Almanac for Thirty-Niners" just produced by the Federal Writers' Project of San Francisco? No where near as imposing as the New York job—it doesn't try to be—the almanac is an amusing, informing, delightful piece of business, 125 pages of good stuff about San Francisco from its beginnings to the end of 1937. Here we have legends, dates, facts, quotations from old writers, scandal, trivia, history, recipes for hangtown fry, crab risotto, onion soup, Chinese dishes, a story about a plump lady whose rubber bustle burst during a reading by Charles Dickens in 1888, and serious statistics about tile tables and fish and game laws. An amusing must-have for all who are thinking of going to San Francisco for the exposition next year. The Browser found at least one error. The almanac says that the body of Samuel Woodworth, author of "The Old Oaken Bucket" lies in an ivy-clad tomb in a pioneer cemetery in San Francisco. That's not true. His family took his remains back home some years ago.

A new book for the Spring: Bobbs-Merrill announce "My Heart Lies Down" by Van Ness Allen of Cincinnati. He went to Liberia when he was eighteen, wrote this book about the black folk, came home, deposited the manuscript with publishers, sailed right back again. Celebrating his 50th year in newspaper work Mark Sullivan went back on November 16 to work for a day on the West Coast, Pa. Daily Local News under the man who gave him his first job in 1888. 140,000 copies of Carl Van Doren's "Benjamin Franklin" have been printed by the Viking Press. A great biography. Phyllis Bottomo, author of "The Mortal Storm," has bought, from coast to coast, "United Artists" have bought, by Howard Spring, who is still reviewing books for a London newspaper. Pascal Covici, out in California for Viking Press, has read 400 pages of John Steinbeck's next novel for Spring publication and swears it will be "the most original and most significant work of fiction ever published in America." How to build a fireplace, how to fix leaky faucets, how to be useful around the house. All this and more in "The Home Owner's Handbook" by C. B. Smith (Modern Age Books) and just the book for Marsh Maslin.

Fair Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLAR

This one is going to look like a man trying to pitch ball with a handful of feathers, because the subject is very loose and scattery. It refers to the sentence of 139 years imposed on a nasty little maniac named Robert Irwin, who killed three persons, and the question whether he got a bargain in escaping the electric chair.

Some say this and some say that, but I will attempt to say that people in this country have centered their attention and resentment on the dramatic crime of murder to the neglect and condonation on another type of crime which is just as bad as murder in its effect on the safety of the community. I am inching up to the subject of graft and corruption in public office and the suppression of the liberties of the people by local dictators.

It isn't only the cash cost to the taxpayers that makes graft a grave crime, because whether a man steals from individuals or from masses of individuals, that is only larceny, after all. But when his thieving, whether by actual tapping of the till, which is a crude method practiced only by poor, dumb dopes, or by subtler methods, deprives the people of improvements and services and brings their government into popular contempt he is a dangerous enemy of the people's liberties and the safety of the country. I suppose that is rather high sounding, but if so that is just too bad and just goes to show how tolerant we are of this kind of crime. I shall tell you why I think it is so dangerous.

Discredits the American System

It sabotages the operation of democracy and brings people to the point of toying with the idea that maybe they would be better off under a dictatorship, which is another way of saying that it discredits the American system of government. They get into the habit of thinking that every second, third or fourth dollar of public money is earmarked for the grafters by a tradition having almost the force and dignity of law, and in time they may develop a what-the-hell attitude and a conviction that democracy is just a wall motto and not a system.

It would be easy to mention names of men who should have gotten death—or, anyway, life—for public thievery in New York, Chicago, Jersey City, Louisiana, Pennsylvania and Connecticut, but I have to watch out for libel, because most of them have never even been indicted, much less convicted, but in informed resident of those communities will find the names springing up to his tongue. If a few such criminals had gotten death—or, anyway, life—a long time back the more recent generation of thieves would never have entered politics at all, because it would have been an honest profession and thus unsuited to their talents and unattractive to their nature.

Suppose, for example, that in Chicago some thieving county officials whose perfidy not only increased the people's tax burden but hampered the efficiency of their government had been hanged in the old county jail, say, thirty years ago. Or suppose he had just gotten life but hadn't been paroled and had been compelled to stay in Joliet until he died.

A Warning to Public Servants

And let me assume also that similar lessons had been given in various other communities early in the game as a warning to public servants that any crime against the public trust tending to sabotage the democratic system would be regarded as an attack on the democratic liberties of the citizens.

I think that had this been done we could today have a much higher standard of honesty in politics in office and that the people, in their hearts, would have a much stronger love for and appreciation of their liberties. But as it is, I am afraid the people regard such crimes as mere mischief inherent in democracy and would be shocked at the very suggestion that a criminal politician, guilty of jeopardizing their liberties by crippling their government, is comparable in evil to a murderous nut who killed three persons. The citizens of this country seem to believe that the good old democratic system can support forever any burden of graft, wilful impairment and discredit that can be loaded upon it. In this sense they connive at the attack on the democratic system and their own liberties, which vanish when the system at last collapses into one or the other of the dirty European isms.

Homer Cummings and Edgar Hoover with the help of the press, have changed the attitude of the whole country toward the hoodlums who for a long time were glorified in the public imagination. They are now regarded as rodent enemies of society, but the thieving, grafting, sabotaging politician and officeholder is still honored as a sort of Robin Hood.

Don't Clean Baby's Mouth

Nature Will Take Care of It, Registered Nurse Declares

It was once believed that the baby's mouth should be cleaned every day; but now doctor advise that these sensitive mucous membranes be left strictly alone, Benaul France, R. N., says in her article "The Care of the Baby's Mouth," in the December issue of Hygiene, The Health Magazine.

Many mothers have infected their babies' mouths by breaking the skin in there with sharp finger-nails. Nature will keep this part of the body clean with the secretion called saliva.

THE WEAK SECTION IS BEGINNING TO GO

Cissie Patterson Appears a Winner In Washington's Cherry Tree Battle

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Washington, D. C., Dec. 2.—Publisher Eleanor Patterson of the Washington Herald and Times looks like having won her fight in defense of the capital's Japanese cherry trees (and a lot of elms and other arboreal species) against the vandals who want the ground that these groves flourish on, to make room for the proposed Thomas Jefferson memorial—planned as a monstrous structure, costing millions and sprawling over an area equivalent to several city blocks. Nobody denies that Jefferson is entitled to a memorial, but plenty of Washingtonians contend that lots of places are available to put it in without spoiling one of the world's loveliest parks for its accommodation.

Vandalism runs rampant in this town anyway, for the simple reason that its townfolk have no voice in the regulation of their local affairs. For example, Central Park in New York or Lincoln Park in Chicago couldn't imaginably be half dug up and laid waste for a memorial to Boss Tweed or Carter Harrison, because their boards of aldermen promptly would vote such suggestions down.

They Have No Vote

Washingtonians, however, have no votes. Let some congressman, who has no eye of his own for beauty, think up a scheme for mutilating the city and the chances are that he'll be able to jam it through. His fellow members want to be accommodating, very few of their constituents ever have anything to them, and the measure's adopted, let native Washingtonians yell as they may.

When I first saw Washington in early 1915 its street were perfectly heavenly. Even in the business district they were tree-lined, branches arching over the thoroughfares. Horse-drawn phaetons negotiated them. It was sickly urban, yet artistically rural—ideal.

I left and came back after a term of years.

Meanwhile the automobile had got in its dirty work. Autoists wanted wider streets, to scorch in, to park in, to kill pedestrians in more conveniently. To broaden the streets, sidewalks had been narrowed. To narrow sidewalks it had been necessary to amputate curb-line trees. The business section no longer was shaded. It was as sun-scoured as Broadway. This devastation has proceeded into the outskirts and still is going on—spreading.

Sixteenth Street (the "Avenue of the Presidents") is tree-arched from end to end. A line of double-decker buses wanted to traverse it. It was obvious that the upper-deck passengers would be scraped off the trees trimmed off on their streetward sides, leaving parallel rows of half trees—trees on one side, nothing on the other side. Gosh! It hasn't been done yet, but it still is contemplated.

Yank Buildings Down

Historic buildings are yanked down remorselessly.

Across the street from the capitol grounds was an old structure in which congress met after the British had burned the original capitol during the War of 1812. Wouldn't one think that that was worth preservation? Not at all. It was razed to make room for the new Supreme Court Building. The Women's National Party had occupied it. It had to move out and did move out, to another historic old residence around the corner. Presently Uncle Sam wanted this other building, for the General Accounting Office. Thereupon the Women's National Party sent a committee to see the congressional committee on the job.

"If you fellows make us move again," said the committee women, "heaven help you at the next election."

Well, congress didn't do it.

Now Publisher Patterson is on the rampage against the desecration of the cherry trees (and many other trees) in the Jefferson memorial's interest.

Initially the memorial is all right. But it's to be built of Georgia marble. Georgia marble producers are inside contractors. The thing's to be built on "made ground"—concrete. Some concrete folks get in on the dicker. There also are other insiders.

Yeah, there are sentimental objections to the Jeffersonian memorial plan.

But some of the objections are material.

Publisher Patterson may not have spiked the Jefferson plan finally, but she's delayed it; it won't go scotching through until it's been investigated. She and her associated women are to be reckoned with.

Patterson

Orders from Washington are that aliens—even those who have taken out their first papers—are to be kicked off WPA payrolls. "Fine," some people say. "Why should these foreigners be entitled to relief?"

Well, first of all, foreigners are people. They must live. If they came into the country properly, they are here with our consent. Of course, if there are any foreigners who are improperly in this country, they can be deported.

If foreigners are not entitled to relief even though they need it, what is to become of them? Are they to be deliberately starved or permitted to starve through indifference? Millions of people in the United States have found it in their hearts to condemn Nazi persecution of the Jews. What difference is there between persecution visited upon Jews and persecution visited upon other people simply because they are foreigners?

If an alien who resides in this country is willing to work, if he came here in order to get a chance to earn a living and, we repeat, if our laws welcomed him, he is entitled to the consideration accorded any other human being who might be found in similar circumstances. The American people cannot afford to sympathize with programs based upon racial bias or antipathy. There is no sound reason in ethics or in law, why aliens should be barred from any of the activities open to citizens of this country who find themselves in unfortunate circumstances.

If we do not want to give the alien a break, the alternative is to deport him. Certainly we cannot afford to play the role of a little Hitler and say to the so-called foreigner within our gates, "Go your way and starve."

The Human Side Of the News

By EDWIN C. HILL

The swiftly expanding popularity of professional football is the outstanding phenomenon of the world of sports. Crowds of 50,000 are common at the Sunday afternoon games in the big cities of the National Football League. And these huge assemblages see a brand of football played that cannot be found in any college stadium. Moreover, spectators at the pro games take fire with excitement and enthusiasm, throw their hats in the air, hang on each other's shoulders and cheer themselves hoarse over the daring, skillful, resourceful play.

Pro teams like John Mara's New York Giants, George Marshall's Washington Redskins and Curly Lambeau's Green Bay Packers have won something approaching the idolatrous following that Notre Dame enjoys in the college world. Professional football is seriously challenging the college game, and for understandable reasons.

Stadium Mortgage Counts

As the college football season wanes, no flagrant professionalism is in evidence, but many teams are still struggling to support alma mater in the style to which she has been accustomed. There is still a mortgage on the old stadium and, looking back over this year's list of games, one finds the all-star schedule looming up bigger than ever—as it has been for the last two or three years.

That means that, to meet stiffening competition, the college must put on more and more main events. The crowds are working up an appetite for raw meat, and the old schedule of "practice games" simply doesn't get their money any more. There have been more top-bracket teams mixing over a longer period this year than in any other season.

As a result of all this, a player on a big college team is in for a much harder grind than he was subject to a few years ago. Never before have coaches sent in so many charity horses, broken ribs, strained ligaments, bad knees, broken arches and bruised muscles. As a case in point, Pittsburgh in a recent big game played a man with two broken ribs.

As to playing substitutes, there is first to be considered that they are essentially second-string men and, what is more important, the crowds want the advertised name. Showmanship is quite as important in the Groves of Academe as it is on Broadway, and it costs about as much to ready a football classic as it does to put on a Broadway show. Hence, no lad with any spirit is going to hang back just because he needs a new wooden leg or a pair of crutches.

A Good Money Year

While college sport has more or less chronic cash-register trouble, this has been a good money year, owing to the Elysian Eastern fall. That string of sunny Saturdays, up to November 19, netted the colleges just about $6,000,000 more than the run-of-the-mill stretch of autumnal weather. They are whittling down the mortgages on the stadia quite a bit, but with all this the load of other college athletics carried by football becomes heavier, with only basketball, and this is to a limited degree, paying its own way.

The Carnegie Institute for the Advancement of Teaching will no doubt come through with its annual admonition and knuckle-rapping about the football Moloch swallowing up the college and with equal certainty the process of ingestion will go right ahead. I've heard the complaint, man and boy, these many years: The elaborate scouting organizations; the card-indexing of an infant in Whatcheer, Iowa, who kicks his toy dog with unwanted vigor; the processing of prospects through fraternity lures and girl traps; the bait of scholarships and soft jobs—all this keeps on and doubtless will for a long time to come, in every college from old Spearfish to the Ivy League.

From Endowment Funds

There is a strong off-stage movement for the support of athletics from the endowment funds of each college. The college does everything where are said to be solidly behind it, but the alumni are still a bulwark, a bulwark and a Maginot Line against change. They not only want their college to get out a winning team, but they believe that only by a winning team can it gain the necessary kudos for attracting and holding the best youngsters.

I am told, however, that undergraduates aren't running quite the football fever they used to; that football hero-worship is passing on the campus and that the average student body would be quite satisfied with intra-mural games, with no box-office angle. In fact, in student publications there has been quite considerable agitation for this view.

Some persons think the rise of professional football will result, in the long run, in putting the college game on its sporting rather than its commercial merits. There is hope in some quarters that pro football gradually will draw off the professional inclined of both players and public and leave the college game free to get organized on a less strenuous and pecuniary basis.

Nerve Fiber Usual Seat of Paralysis

Doctor Regards That As Fortunate As Disease There Cured Easier Than In Brain

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"MY NERVES" means to most of my readers, I hope, a kind of vision of a diagrammatic human with long strands running from a central spinal cord to the outskirts of its body. To a few, it means that something inside the mind doesn't like to have Jones, the butcher boy, whistle as he delivers the lamb chops to the kitchen.

This makes for a slight confusion, which I note from time to time in my correspondence; such as, "I see you recommend Vitamin B for nerves. Would it be good for my granddaughter who has what has been diagnosed as hysteria?" No, it would not be good for that, so let me attempt to explain.

Communication System
The nervous system is a communication system, and it may be compared to such a communication system as your own telephone exchange. If you pick up your telephone receiver and dial it properly and fail to get a response, one of several things may have happened. The central telephone exchange may have burned down, the branch exchange may have burned down, or the wire between your home and the exchange may have been cut.

In the comparison with the central nervous system, the central exchange represents the brain, the branch exchange the spinal cord, and the telephone wires the nerves, or nerve fibers that go out from the cord to the muscles or to the skin. A paralysis may have its seat in the brain or in the cord, but most forms are due to disease of the nerve fibers. And this is fortunate because disease of the nerves can be cured more readily than disease of the brain or spinal cord.

Fiber Regenerates

This is due to the ability of the nerve fiber to regenerate. I said in an earlier article this week that a nerve fiber going out from it, so long as the cell itself is intact, will regenerate. The nerve cell that moves the muscle of your thumb lies in the spinal cord, in the middle of the back of your neck; from it the slender nerve fiber runs out along the arm to the thumb. If this fiber is cut or otherwise interrupted, the cell will send out a new fiber which, growing along the path of the old one, will eventually make the path intact again. Regeneration occurs in lower animals to an astonishing degree. The lobster will part company with a limb, and slowly grow an entire new one. In man this faculty of regeneration is represented only in the nerve fiber. The causes of nerve fiber degen-eration are either poisons or lack of proper food. Perhaps most of them are due to lack of proper food. We used to think that alcohol would cause neuritis; now we know that so-called alcoholic neuritis can be cured by giving the patient Vitamin B, which is a normal ingredient of a balanced diet. The alcoholic gets his neuritis from starvation; all chronic alcoholics tend to depend on the alcohol for their caloric bodily needs and neglect eating, or at least neglect eating a balanced diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. S.: "What effect would two cups of carrot juice a day for a month have? I was told by a layman it was a builder."

Answer — Carrots contain carotene, which is the precursor of vitamin A, the vitamin which protects against infection. Excessive use of carrots results in a yellowish discoloration of the skin—carotenemia. Otherwise, there is no possibility of harm.

Reader: "What causes black objects to float in front of the eyes?" Answer—Scotomata of this kind are probably due to opacities in one or the other of the watery humors of the eye. They do no harm and cannot be helped.

Animated Mind, Good Health Ways to Make Eyes Attractive

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT IS only the daring honey ready to demonstrate her cosmetic convictions who can flaunt eye shadows without self-consciousness. She knows they're there and realizes that they give her soul orbs an air of mystery. She lives up to them.

There are other means of making eyes attractive. The most effective is the animated mind. When the old brain is sparkling, eyes do likewise, sending out the beams. Good health is a factor. Lack of vitality dims the pretty lanterns.

Certain colors will bring out the loveliness of the eyes. When buying hat or frocks, consider their relationship to the eyes as well as to the complexion. Now that bonnets are trimmed for all they are worth, with feathers, flowers and daisies, it is possible to find one that will glorify the eyes. A bit of bright blue, jade green or one of the deep rose shades may do a lot to help eyes make grade 1.

Don't powder the eye lids, that makes them look heavy. Film them lightly with vaseline or a liquid cream. It's good to make eyelashes grow thick and long. Make eyes look dewy; it is understood that dewy eyes make slaves of men.

Look at the flesh just in front of your ear lobes. If there are tiny crinkles there, you must take time by the cowlick, do everything possible to make firm the facial tissues.

LYNN BARI... her sparkling eyes register good health and vitality.

If you don't you'll go to seed before your time.

The generous use of oily cosmetics, applied with light tapping and slapping movements, will nourish the tissues, strengthen the tiny fibers under the skin and so arouse the blood streams that they will do rebuilding work.

Ice rubs daily and cold rinses after the facial tubbing are of benefit.

RESPECT THE REASON

THERE IS NO sustenance in blindly respecting rules of play which you have heard, no matter how sound those rules may be. The thing of paramount importance is the reason back of the rule. If you know that, you can then figure out when to lead from a king and do other perfectly sane things which may not seem to fit the literal wording of a so-called rule.

East had been told never to lead from a king and because he failed to do so in this instance he allowed South to make a contract to which he was not entitled. The diamond return was useless and dangerous because of the heart situation. When the diamond K dropped, it indicated a singleton, the hearts and trumps were solid, so that the only hope to defeat declarer was in the club suit.

CHAPTER 36

THE PROFESSOR least likely to attract attention at the opening of college this fall unquestionably would have been Thornton Holgate. Then, too, he was the man least likely to have stirred Sara Sue's heart.

To begin with, it was highly unlikely that she should ever have met him at all, socially. He had been a retiring, scholarly, even shy sort, who imagined himself to be middle aged, and who was eternally concerned with mathematical phenomena. Sara Sue was a widow still bubbling with youth, a girl of infinite charm and animation. Fate must have chuckled a bit at bringing two such unrelated personalities together.

To be sure, the attachment was only half-way. Which only made it the more tragic. Sara Sue, herself, could not have told you why she loved Thornton. Certainly he was not her type. Her husband of five years ago had been a noisy, blustering athlete, much like her great admirer, Bob Towne, and everybody about the campus was predicting that by November Bob would have no trouble capturing the lovely Sara Sue.

It was known, by now, that Dr. Thornton Holgate saw Sara Sue frequently, but no inkling of any romance there had been given. Actually, of course, it was not a romance; it was just a one-sided, now heart-breaking business of a girl loving a man, a repetition for the nth time of life's most poignant tragedy—unrequited love.

No, it was worse than unrequited love.

It was worse because Sara Sue, loving a man, was pledged to help him win another girl!

Given fair and open field, Sara Sue or any other spunky American girl would have challenged her rival to fight. She could have set out to take Thornton away from Peaches Pomeroy, and the world would have applauded the winner. But—Sara Sue's hands were tied. Tied because she loved Thornton so deeply that she would do anything to insure his happiness. And his happiness, so he had declared, lay in winning Miss Pomeroy. Since he had seen Peaches a few times of late, he was declaring his yearning for her more often than ever, more vehemently than at first, and all Sara Sue could do was to listen and renew her professional pledge to help him.

Sara Sue could not know, of course, that a man sometimes will speak vehemently in an effort to convince not only others, but himself as well. Or at least she could not know to apply this to Thornton. She could not know that Thornton was unconsciously trying to will the happiness that he had first envisioned, out which seemed to be slipping away. Nor knew that Thornton himself had really undergone a change of heart, even though unadmitted.

The truth is that Thornton had cooled toward Peaches, but—can a man drag his pride in the dust? Having sworn his complete loyalty and love for Peaches, and having hired Mrs. Davis' help in winning her, could he confess now that he didn't want the girl after all?

No, in fact, he wouldn't even confess that to himself.

He told himself (as Sara Sue had earlier intimated) that he had been something of a sissy, and if Miss Pomeroy were modern and lively and gay, then he should try to match her pace. Therein, no doubt, lay the solution of his problem, the realization of his dreams.

"Perseverance is a good trait, in love as well as in business, Thornton," Sara Sue counseled. "Don't stop trying to win Peaches. If she refused you a date for the freshman dance, ask her again for the big autumn prom, the International. It's not too early to ask her now."

He went personally to Wademan's and picked out the best roses to be had.

the Republic of Mexico. The latter would be represented by its own university team from Mexico City, itself an excellent football organization.

And following that would be the International ball, honoring the visiting players. It would be the one outstanding social event of the college year.

"Everybody will be there, Thornton," Sara Sue was explaining. "Everybody of social importance, that is. It would be a real pleasure for you to take Peaches. And—I think she may not be dated yet, and will probably go with you."

"Excellent, if she would," he agreed. "I shall ask her. Would you advise me just to telephone, or—perhaps send my request? Perhaps with some flowers?"

Sara Sue considered that. "Why, Thornton—I believe you are right! Surely! What a nice way to do it. Write her an informal note, saying—just saying it would surely be a pleasure to escort her to the International ball, or something like that, and put it in a box of roses. Why, I'm proud of you for thinking of it!"

Sara Sue would have been thrilled, she knew, to have received a box of roses with a request for a date tied in. Now she could even enjoy Peaches' thrill a little bit, vicariously.

She gazed up at Thornton, smiling sweetly, unconscious of the mistiness in her eyes. He looked so fine! He was a trifle florid, naturally, and this made him seem boyish when he blushed a bit more under praise. He had weaned himself from the habit of looking away from people when conversing with them, a habit born of shyness. He had stopped being owl-eyed and quizzical and frowning when something startled him. He was still quiet of manner, and polite, and genteel. But he certainly was no whit a sissy any more.

He had almost given his life to save two others, in the sea at Galveston. And Sara Sue herself had seen him knock out a burly sailor in one smashing flat blow, without seeming unduly ruffled about it. He seemed to be a gentleman of quiet, reserve power, perhaps a physical and mental power which he himself had not fully appreciated nor appraised. Sara Sue told herself, in this moment of looking at him, that Peaches Pomeroy would be a fool if she did refuse him.

He went ahead with his plan, when he had left Sara Sue's cottage.

He went personally to Wademan's—Clarence Wademan, florist,

VEGETABLES

There is no longer any excuse for continually serving the same old vegetables in the same old way. Vegetables will be enjoyed and accepted by every member of the family if they are properly cooked, if they are served in many ways, and if a wide variety is offered. By alternating the methods of cooking and by combining vegetables in different ways with each other and with other foods a perfectly astonishing variety of vegetables can be obtained.

A fundamental rule for cooking vegetables is: do not overcook. The following recipes are just a few ideas for varying the plain dish of mashed potatoes.

Recipes—Submitted by Elwanda Vannoy, Senior student at Fort Hill High School.

Potatoes On the Halfshell

Select medium sized or large potatoes; scrub and bake. Remove a piece of skin from the side of each potato to make it boat shaped, or cut large potatoes in two lengthwise. Scoop out the inside, being careful not to break the shell. Mash very thoroughly. May be put through the ricer. Add butter, salt and hot milk, and beat well. Pile the mixture lightly back in the shells. Do not smooth down the top. Stand the filled shells in a shallow pan, return to oven (400 degrees F.) and brown lightly on top.

Mashed Potatoes With Frankfurters

Mashed potatoes, Frankfurters, 1 egg.

Add beaten eggs to mashed potatoes and mix thoroughly. Add enough flour to make a nice consistency. Wrap a small amount around the center of each frankfurter. Fry in small amount of fat.

Note: An excellent way to use left-over mashed potatoes.

Duchess Potatoes

2 cups hot, rice 1/2 teaspoon salt potatoes 3 egg yolks, slightly beaten butter

Select medium potatoes. Wash and bake. Remove a piece from the side of each potato to make it boat shape. Scrape out the inside. Mash thoroughly, add butter, salt, and egg yolks; mix and beat well. Put mashed potatoes in the shell, filling them full. Put in a shallow pan and bake in oven at 425 degrees F. until brown.

Note: A beaten egg yolk diluted with one tablespoon of water may be used to brush over the top of the potatoes.

Pomme Fondante

5 cups mashed potatoes 1/2 cup coarse stale bread crumbs 1 egg

Turn potatoes into buttered baking dish. Pour cream over them and sprinkle with crumbs. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees F.) until crumbs are brown.

Note: A few pieces of cheese may be added to give more color and flavor.

Stuffed Potatoes

6 potatoes 2 or 3 tablespoons 2 egg whites, granulated butter 3 tablespoons 1/2 cup milk

Select medium or large size potatoes. Wash and scrub. Bake in oven. Remove from oven and cut a piece from the side of each potato to make it boat shaped. Scrape out inside. Mash thoroughly, add butter, milk, salt, pepper, peanut butter, and egg whites. Mix and beat well. Put back in shells, and pile up the top. Put in shallow pan, and bake at 400 degrees F. until lightly browned.

Note: Salt to please own taste, and add more milk or peanut butter if desired. Add hot milk to make potatoes fluffy.

Remember: Mashed potatoes are lighter and fluffier if they are mashed immediately after cooking, and be sure to use hot milk. Do you recall that the potato is a mild vegetable and should be cooked tightly covered in a small amount of water, leaving little or no liquid left when the vegetable is done?

Take a Christmas Cooky Tip
From Shoppers and Start Early

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

Do your Christmas cooky baking early too. It will help you dodge that holiday rush in the kitchen.

Get the family busy cracking nuts, chopping candied fruits and check over your supplies of "sugar and spice and everything nice."

Start with those universal favorites, brownies. They'll keep a couple of weeks if you hide them from the family. Here's a recipe for a big batch:

CHOCOLATE CHRISTMAS COOKIES

2 cups sifted flour 1/2 cup butter or other shortening 1/2 cup granulated sugar 1/2 cup cocoa powder 1/2 teaspoon soda 1/2 teaspoon salt 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

Sift flour once. Measure. Add baking powder, soda, salt and cinnamon, and sift three times. Cream butter. Add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy. Add flour, a little at a time, mixing well after each addition. Chill thoroughly. Roll 1/4-inch thick on slightly floured board. Cut with floured cooky cutter, decorate with Butterfly Frosting or sprinkle with colored sugar. Bake on ungreased sheet in moderate oven (350 degrees) nine minutes. Makes 30 cookies.

If you like brownies spicier—and more "chewy," add a cup of chopped dates, figs or raisins and a teaspoon of cinnamon to the other ingredients.

Now for an old-fashioned cooky that always brightens boxes of holiday treats—coconut drops:

Cream together two-thirds cup butter and one and one-half cups granulated sugar. Add two eggs, one-fourth cup cream, teaspoon vanilla, half-teaspoon each, grated orange and lemon rind, and fourth-teaspoon salt. Beat two minutes and mix in three cups flour and two teaspoons baking powder. Shape dough into a roll, sprinkle with coconut, wrap in waxed paper and chill a day or longer. When you're ready to bake them, cut the roll into thin slices, sprinkle them with milk and coconut, and bake about eight minutes in a moderate oven.

No cooky list is complete without hermits—or rocks. Better make enough to last through the holidays. Here's a new recipe that makes about four dozen: Cream together one cup of butter and two cups dark brown sugar, add one-fourth cup sour cream, three eggs, two teaspoons vanilla and fourth teaspoon salt. Beat two minutes, add two teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon each of mace, cloves and nutmeg, two cups chopped dates, you're ready to bake them, cut the roll into thin slices, sprinkle them with milk and coconut, and bake about eight minutes in a moderate oven.

Rumania Anxious Over Aftermath of Iron Guard Purge

Fear Felt Attempt May Be Made To Avenge Codreanu's Death

Bucharest, Dec. 2 (AP)—Rumania waited anxiously tonight to see whether the outlawed Fascist Iron Guard would seek vengeance for the killing of its chief, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, and 13 followers, or whether, as officials said, "the guard is dead."

King Carol II, who only three days ago was acclaimed as a successful promoter of international friendship on his return from a 15-day tour of Europe, emerged in a strong position while authorities took stern precautions against any outbreak of terrorism.

Codreanu, who was serving a 10-year prison sentence for high treason, and his followers were shot to death yesterday when, authorities announced, they tried to escape.

To forestall any outbreak of revenge, police were ordered to shoot anyone caught at crime or violence. Today passed without any untoward events.

The country celebrated, though a bit nervously, the 20th anniversary of the annexation of Transylvania, a part of Austro-Hungary before the World War.

Cabinet ministers attended religious observances and many public offices were closed.

National officials expressed optimism that what remained of the Iron Guard would disintegrate in a confusion of squabbles over a leader to take the place of Codreanu.

They rejected ideas that the killing of the agitator threatened to stir up international difficulties, particularly with Germany and Italy.

Revision of State Parole Laws Hinted

Baltimore, Dec. 2 (AP)—A probability that new legislation would be presented to the 1939 General Assembly, calling for revision of the state parole laws and expansion of the parole department, was held out today by Parole Commissioner J. Cookman Boyd.

Boyd, declining to give details of proposed changes until his annual report and recommendations have been made to Gov. Harry W. Nice, said only that he hoped the revision would expand the facilities of the department.

Interstate parole compacts, providing for supervision of paroled prisoners from other states, have added new and heavy burdens of investigation and supervision, Boyd explained, leaving the department understaffed.

Secretary of Labor Says Wagner Act "As Is" Oke

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Secretary of Labor Perkins took her stand today with those who think the Wagner Labor Relations Act is all right as it is. She told reporters:

"On the basis of my present knowledge, I do not favor amendments to the act."

Though her statement was so worded as to permit a later reversal of attitude, it placed her, for the present at least, in the same camp as the National Labor Relations Board and the CIO. Both oppose revision, which is demanded for varying reasons by the American Federation of Labor, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers.

Severe Storm Lashes The Pacific Coast

Portland, Ore., Dec. 2 (AP)—High winds whipped the Pacific Northwest coast today, tying up shipping, crowding airplanes and disrupting communications.

Shipping at the mouth of the Columbia river was completely disrupted, as vessels were unable to cross the bar because of shoaling sands.

Along the Oregon coast the wind reached a velocity of 57 miles an hour. Fishing boats scurried to cover along the Oregon and Washington coasts.

Becomes Sheriff Month Ahead of His Time

Bel Air, Md., Dec. 2 (AP)—Walter E. Bennington was sworn in as sheriff of Harford County today—a month ahead of time—thus solving a problem that arose when Ex-Sheriff Granville C. Boyle was elected clerk of the Circuit Court.

Boyle normally would have served until the first of the year, but he was a successful candidate for the court post in November, and resigned as sheriff when he assumed his new duties today.

Until Bennington's commission from Governor Nice arrived today, it had been feared that the county would be without a sheriff until Jan. 1.

Ickes Urged To Run For Mayor of Chicago

Chicago, Dec. 2 (AP)—A formal campaign to enlist Secretary Ickes in the race for Mayor of Chicago was started here today.

A score of citizens disclosed they had sent him a telegram asking him to enter the contest for one of the most important municipal offices in the United States.

"We believe we express the wishes of our community when we urge you to return to Chicago as our next mayor," the message read. "We assure you our wholehearted support."

The Ickes-for-mayor movement was disclosed a day after the secretary of the interior told reporters in Washington he had an "open mind" on the subject of becoming a candidate.

Mayor Edward J. Kelly, co-leader of the city's Democratic organization, declined to comment.

Nash Automobile Plant Closed by "Sit-Down"

Kenosha, Wis., Dec. 2 (AP)—A Nash-Kelvinator corporation spokesman tonight blamed radical agitation outside the control of officials of the United Automobile Workers' union for a labor dispute that brought about a shutdown today of the Nash Automobile plant here and the Seaman Body division at Milwaukee. Approximately 4,250 men were thrown out of work.

R. A. De Vlieg, general works manager of the Nash Motors division said about 300 men sat down in the assembly department yesterday "under radical agitation which did not have union authorization."

Injury of Youth Is Mystery to Police

The boy, carrying a social security card issued to Juan Vinas, New York City, was found on the highway by State patrolman Gus Clancy.

Taken to a hospital he remained unconscious several hours later. Officers said the boy had been severely bruised. They said the injuries may have been caused by an automobile which failed to stop, by a beating, or by a fall from a moving motor truck.

Morro Castle Hero Is Convicted of Assault In Wounding Officer

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 2 (AP)—George W. Rogers, 41, radio operator hero of the Morro Castle disaster and suspended Bayonne policeman, was convicted today by Common Pleas Judge Thomas R. Brown on a charge of assault with intent to kill a superior officer.

At the request of Rogers' counsel, Alexander Simpson, the trial was without jury. Rogers was accused of leaving a home-made bomb, labeled a "fish tank heater" for Lieutenant Vincent J. Doyle to "repah" last March 4. The "heater" exploded when Doyle inserted a plug into an electric socket and he suffered a broken leg and lost three fingers. Rogers faces a maximum sentence of five to 30 years in the state prison at Trenton.

The state contended he sought to "maim or kill" Doyle in order to get the lieutenant's job. Rogers denied he planted the bomb.

Rogers was acclaimed as a hero for sticking to his post as chief radio operator on the Morro Castle when it burned off the New Jersey shore September, 1934, with a loss of 124 lives.

Floor space of 120,000 square feet has been made available in the Palace of Fine Arts at the 1939 California World's Fair on Treasure Island.

Trojans Stand In Irish Path To Grid Glory

Can Check Way to Mythical Title with Upset Victory

LOTS OF TAKERS AT 8 TO 5 BETTING ODDS

Layden Will Start Same Eleven as In Major Victories

BY ROBERT MYERS

Los Angeles, Dec. 2 (AP)—Notre Dame's football forces, determined to march on to the nation's mythical 1938 grid championship, reigned slight favorites over the Cardinal and Gold of Southern California tonight as indications pointed to a record-breaking crowd for tomorrow's thrilling annual struggle between the two eleveners.

Hailed as the greatest team since the Rockne-coached machine of 1956, the Irish from South Bend rolled into Los Angeles to find the town in a near-frenzy of excitement and confidence high—but not too high—in the Trojans of U. S. C., the Rose Bowl representatives of the far west.

Unless the general admission trade is scared away by pre-game sell-out rumors, something that has happened in the past, Memorial Coliseum will be teeming with 100,000 or more grid fans tomorrow afternoon.

Irish Bets Taken

The all-time record for the Irish-U. S. C. series was set in 1929 at Soldier Field in Chicago. That was the year of Notre Dame's Carideo and Savoldi and 13-12 victory. The official count was 99,451.

Tonight Notre Dame was on the long end of 8-5 betting odds, and takers seemed easily located.

Coach Elmer Layden announced he would start the same eleven that went against Minnesota and Northwestern.

S. C.'s regular crew will go into immediate action with one notable exception among the backs. Bob Hoffman, the best blocker and defensive man on the squad, gives way to a wobbly knee and Joe Shell at the left halfback position. Kickoff time is 5 o'clock EST.

Paw Paw Cagers Bow To Grid's in Opener

Paw Paw, W. Va., Dec. 2—After setting a fast pace for three periods, Coach Arns' Paw Paw High cagers fell apart in the final set and bowed to a fast Alumni quint 39-28 here Thursday in the local school's basketball season opener.

With Belmont Rockwell, high-scoring veteran, showing the way, Paw Paw grabbed the long end of an 8-5 score during the first period and boosted its edge to 21-15 at the intermission. At the close of the third quarter, the Grade had whitened the schoolboys' margin to two points at 25-23.

In the last heat, Raymond Robinson was injured and his absence took some of the fight out of the Paw Paw. The Alumni reeled off 15 points during the final period while holding the losers to three.

Paw Paw's next game will be played at Westminster Wednesday night with Bruce High.

Southern All Stars Given Psychological Edge Over North

Burns of Keyser in Starting Lineup at Guard Post

Charleston, W. Va., Dec. 2 (AP)—The fireworks for West Virginia's own "Civil War" were all set tonight, with the Southern All Stars given only a psychological edge over the pick of Northern West Virginia's schoolboy football players.

The South never has known defeat at Laidley Field. It will go onto the gridiron tomorrow with a record of three victories and two ties behind it.

On the other hand, the Northern forces arrived in town boasting one of the most colorful backfields yet seen in high school circles, fronted with a line which they are confident will push the South ever backward in the sixth annual charity game tomorrow.

John Katchur of Morgantown, Paul Meredith and Bill Early of Parkersburg and Albert Roman of Weirton are conceded to be the best northern backfield in many a year. Stars Work Well.

The south's answer, however, rests with Huntington's brilliant Ray Wolfe, Beckley's Buster Smith—whose punting was one of the sensations of the past season—Hinton's Bobby Dodd and Harold Fields of Williamson, a combination of stars who worked well together during the week of practice just ended.

Crowd estimates have been placed around 10,000 for tomorrow's meeting, but officials said if it is a good day, the stadium should be filled to its 12,500 capacity.

Co-captains of the southern forces are Bo Hammonds of East Bank and Charles Harris of Hinton, two of the finest tackles in this section.

The northern captain has not been announced yet.

Neither Coach J. R. Van Meter of the south nor Arthur H. Clyde of the north attempted to call the turn in pre-game statements.

The south starting line—ends, Lloyd of East Bank and Barnett of Charleston; tackles, Harris and Hammond; guards, Summers of Charleston and Williams of Dunbar; center, Fieri of Williamson.

The north starting line—ends, Krzmaric of Benwood and Boyer of Tradelphia; tackles, Barnes of Parkersburg and Arboczewski of Weirton; guards, Cimino of Weirton and Burns of Keyser; center, Kafer of Weston.

THE Sportlight BY GRANTLAND RICE

Somewhere in Arkansas, Dec. 3—A frosty, early winter morning—the sun shining on the stubble—not a telephone within fifty miles—the troubles of life and the world lost and forgotten beyond a distant horizon.

"We get off here," Bill Dickey says, as he dismounts from his horse and I follow suit. Bill goes to pick out the two starting dogs, who are on the verge of throwing sixteen fits in their eagerness to get away. There may be a prettier animal than a bird dog—especially a black and white setter—but I never saw one.

"Many birds around here?" you ask.

"Many birds?" Bill repeats. "If you don't look out they'll knock your hat off."

We start out and the dogs get busy at top speed. In a short while they come to point. "There they are," Bill says.

I've gotten a thrill out of most sports: the knockout in a heavyweight championship—one of Babe Ruth's home runs in a world series—a 50 or 60-yard broken field run in a big football game, or a long forward pass that happens to connect—a full brassie shot down the stretch of an Open or a two iron that stops close to the pin—a tennis smash for the winning point down the white dust of the line—the late afternoon in Berlin Jesse Owens jumped almost out of Germany to set a new world record—a hooked sword-fish or a hooked tarpon or a hooked sail-fish in blue and white waters—but quail shooting has a double thrill that no other sport can quite equal.

First, there is the freeze of the point—a highly animated animal who suddenly turns into a statue of black and white marble, and his mate backs him up. They both might be painted against the background of green and brown. This is the first thrill—a matchless sight in the way of almost unbelievable beauty. Sport has nothing to offer that can quite match it for the human eye.

You move up just back of the dogs. Bill Dickey is looser than ashes. It's an old story to him. I am more tense and more frozen than the dogs. You know there are fifteen or twenty birds only a few feet away. But you can't see them. Their brown and white color blends with nature's cover. You take another step.

The next thrill is the climax. You know what is coming, but the shock is still the same. There is a sudden whirr and drumming, a shattering explosion of wings, and the air is full of flying creatures. You can't miss all the birds. All you have to do is shoot into the covey. Very much to your surprise no bird falls. It is different with Dickey. He picks out his bird and the bird falls. He picks out another, and the second bird falls.

"We each get a bird," Bill says. We both know Bill is lying. But for a friendly cause. Bill couldn't miss a hummingbird with a rifle, and being too rusty and too jumpy you know you couldn't hit a barn at three paces.

"I'll give you a little tip," Dickey says later. "I don't care how thick they look, never shoot at a covey. Just pick out your bird."

That sounds simple enough. But try it sometime after a long layoff, when you see what looks to be a massed flight in front of you. Pick out your bird—whose bird? Don't think these quail can't travel. They are faster than Notre Dame's backfield. And you are shooting in the middle of a temporary nervous shock. You can't wait. You can't, but Bill can. He lets you shoot first and then finally nails a bird almost out of range. He nails another that is just disappearing around a pine tree.

Bill Dickey is one of the greatest field shots that ever handled a gun. Complete relaxation is one of the main assets.

It is one of the reasons why he is a star in any pinch—why he is always a greater player in an important game, especially a world series. He never tightens up. It has been a treat to see him play baseball for ten years. It is an even greater treat to see him in the field.

Dickey spots the flight of the covey and knows where the single birds are. This is where the novice or the rusty hunter has the better chance. He knows there is only one bird to watch.

You go on, mile after mile. You may be tired, but you don't know it. You'll find out later. Covey after covey. Bill says, "Suppose we sit down and grab a sandwich." You say, "No, let's keep going on." Bill grins. "I think we'd better rest a bit."

You sit down on a log and suddenly decide you are never going to leave that log again. You start to get up and something begins to creek. Your shoes have become full of lead.

"We've done about eighteen miles," Bill says, "and we've got enough birds for today. We've still got tomorrow."

Then you understand Bill's grin. You are dead tired, but what a different form of weariness. Feet, legs and body—every muscle—is tired. But the weariness of worn and jumpy nerves is missing. The

Cunningham Feat To Be Accepted As U. S. Record

Mile in 4 Minutes 4.4 Seconds Recommended for Approval

Ben Johnson's 60-Yards in Six Seconds under Dispute

BY BILL BONI

Washington, Dec. 2 (AP)—Glenn Cunningham's startling feat of running the mile in 4 minutes 4.4 seconds was recommended today for acceptance as an American record by the record committee of the National Amateur Athletic Union.

Tomorrow or Sunday it will be submitted to the general convention for final approval as the fastest mile ever run by man.

Because it has received the blessing of the committee, its acceptance is regarded as a mere formality, since performances that meet with no objection in committee deliberations are seldom opposed by the convention as a whole.

When approved, Cunningham's time will replace his own standard of 4:08.4, set in 1934. The world record however, remains at 4:06.4 as set by England's Sydney Wooderson, for Cunningham ran his race indoors, in the Dartmouth College gymnasium on March 3, 1938, and indoor performances are not recognized by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which passes on world records.

Paul R. Jordan of Indianapolis, the record committee chairman, received a mass of evidence to show that Cunningham's record was legitimate. The dean of the school of civil engineering twice measured the track; Cunningham, just to make sure there could be no slip-up, started three inches behind scratch; the timers' watches were checked and regulated by Leslie P. Murch, professor of physics, and all three watches caught Galloping Glenn at 4:04.4.

The record committee withheld approval of only one application pending further investigation. That was Ben Johnson's clocking of 6 seconds flat for 60 yards, turned in last February 5. Objection to the former Columbia University speedster's effort was based on a claim he had beaten the gun.

Delegates from the Pacific Coast and New England argued hotly over the award to the 1939 boxing championships, until the question finally was put to a vote and the tournament went to the Pacific Coast, for the first time in its history, by 21 to 9.

San Francisco, seeking attractions for its World Fair, lost out in the bidding for the men's outdoor track and field championships, which it had sought through Fresno State College. This meet went to the University at Lincoln, with New York retaining the indoor championships, the Connecticut Association drawing the Women's outdoor track and field, and Denver gaining the men's basketball tournament for the fifth straight year.

For the second year in succession, the track and field committee defeated a motion to supplant the metric system now in vogue in the national championships with the linear system of measurement.

The Shamrock Athletic Club's amateur boxing show, announced for next Monday, December 5, at the old Belvedere Hall, Baltimore street, has been postponed to Friday, December 9. Bill Niland, major domo of the Shamrockers said yesterday.

Niland attributed the postponement to the difficulty he has been having in lining up top-notch talent for the card. "Rather than attempt to start our indoor season with a mediocre show," Niland said, "I've decided to postpone the program for a few days."

The Shamrock impresario dispatched an "SOS" Thursday to Terry McManus, veteran trainer of Pittsburgh Boys' Club punchers, to come to his rescue with suitable opponents for leading larrupers of this district.

Niland hopes to have Tony Lisanti, Joe McGreevy, Homer Jackson and other top-ranking scrappers on his card.

Maestro of Golf Driving Range Is Journey Leader

Leo Walper Captures First Round in Augusta Golf Open

His 67, Four Under Par, Still Finds 20 "Big Shots" Close

Augusta, Ga., Dec. 2 (AP)—Leo Walper, maestro at a Washington driving range but seldom in golf's big money, captured the first round in the $5,000 Augusta Open Golf Tournament today with a 67 that shamed par by four strokes.

Larrylin Leo sizzled through the front nine in 33, battling out five 3's and never going over par. He cooled just a bit on the backside but whacked in three birdies to more than offset a 6 on the par four eleventh, winding up with a 33-34-67.

Although Walper's 67 tied the Forest Hills tournament record set two years ago by Ralph Guldahl, he wound up far from a comfortable lead as 20 "big shots and unknowns" shelled par from all angles.

Sam Byrd, who abandoned fence-busting for par-busting, ended the first heat of the 72-hole test with a 35-33-68, that gave the Philadelphia pro and former Yankee outfielder second place.

Only a stroke behind the runner-up at 69 were Phil Perkins, Willoughby, Ohio, Jimmy Hines, Great Neck, L. I., Mike Turnesa, Fairview, N. Y., and E. J. "Dutch" Harrison, Oak Park, Ill.

Also good for better than par were Sam Sneed, the big money winner from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and Leonard Dodson, Springfield, Mo., who turned in 70's.

Jack Doyle, Irish Linnit, Will Go Back to His Erin

Uncle Sam Hears Plaintive Plea of Tearful Tenor Singer

Will Be Sent Back to Erin On First Boat Over

By JOHN LARDNER

New York, Dec. 2. (AP)—A guy can sing. "I Want to Go Back to That Tumbledown Shack in Athlone" and "Ireland Must Be Heaven 'Cause My Mother Came From There" and "Take Me Back, Back to Erin" and "Oh, for a Life in That Old Country Down" and he can sing them just so long. Then somebody is apt to give him his wish.

Bold Jack Doyle, the Hibernian linnit, has warbled his native melodies for years in all parts of the world. He has urged beautiful girls on the Riviera, over cocktails, to take him back, back, back to Tralee. He has advised the customers in Jack Dempsey's beany and Hollywood's Trocadero that he was yearning, with a burning, for the fields of Ballyclare.

This week, all the "back, back, back" songs that Jack ever sang rose up together and bit him in the ear. The U. S. government took him at his word and promised to ship him back, back, back—on the first boat he could catch.

A Lesson for Irish Tenors

There is a beautiful lesson in this. All you have to do to get back, back, back to Athlone is sing about it long enough and use a phoney passport. A million Irish tenors will sigh with envy when the Doyle of Cork goes back to the land of his dreams, and they will wonder why in the name of St. Michael they never thought of doing what he did.

For some reason or other, the Doyle of Cork seems to be annoyed at getting what he asked for, in the key of one sharp. The swallow of the Shannon claims that the boys took him too seriously.

"When I say I want to go back to that old country Down," explains Mr. Doyle, "I do not mean right exactly in the middle of that old country down. I will settle for the Stork club in New York city, that is about as close to the old country Down as I want to get right now. The trouble is, the G-men do not seem to have any sense of humor."

No doubt the G-men are hurt by Mr. Doyle's attitude. He asked for service, and they gave him service. Mistake or no mistake, the upshot is that the Free State nightingale is going back, back, back by fast packet.

The government has a good case. As I understand it, the testimony runs somewhat as follows:

Q. Mr. Doyle, did you or did you not, on the night of September 11, express a wish to be dropping daisies, one by one, in your mother's gray hair in Kildare?

A. That's right, but I can always ship the daisies or cable them.

Q. Will that get you to Kildare, yes or no?

A. No, old fellow, that won't get me to Kildare, but you don't understand. If—

Q. What if this Mavroune gets your message? What if you are not there in Erin to meet her? What will she think?

A. I don't know what she'll think but—

Q. Mr. Doyle, is it or is it not a fact that all the time the heart of you, the true, the better part of you, is sobbin' for the robin, in the fields of Ballyclare?

A. You don't understand, old fellow. I am going to marry a fabulously wealthy American heiress who is madly in love with me. Perhaps after that I will—

Q. Mr. Doyle, your heart is not sobbin' for the robin in the field of Ballyclare, is it?

A. No, they have a very low grade of robin out there.

Q. In fact, there is no substitute for the Ballyclare robin, is there?

A. No, but I can have one sent over.

Q. We will save you the trouble, Mr. Doyle. We will put you on a boat for Ballyclare. Once there, you can make Kildare, Athlone, Tralee, the River Shannon, and all way-stations. So long.

For the time being, that is the end of bold Jack Doyle, an Irish tenor who got his wish.

The SPORT TRAIL

By Paul Mickelson

New York, Dec. 2. (AP)—In his annual news letter from Miami, Sparrow Ramsay, bantamweight publicity champion of the world, today warned all lucky people bound for Florida this Winter to lug along a complete assortment of ear muffs and sweaters as well as their golf clubs, bathing suits and white flannels.

It seems Miami isn't satisfied with palm trees and good, old fashioned sunshine. The folks down that way are going in so strong for Winter sports they threaten to make such Winter spots as Lake Placid and St. Moritz look like desert scenes. For a spell, the promoters along Biscayne boulevard, Miami, had a scheme all worked out to build a mountain on the outskirts of the city so they could sneak some trade away from Pike's Peak and some of the Pacific Coast mountain resorts. But when the engineers spoke of money like they do gravel, the stunt was forgotten.

Mr. Ramsay, who takes great pride in the fact he is related to King Zog of Albania by marriage, thinks so highly of the Miami Winter sports plan that he is constructing a new house in Coral Gables, along the stern, wind proof lines of habitable igloos in the northland. He's a man of vision.

Herewith his letter: "A great Winter season is down on us here in Miami where the birds sing sweetly the year-round and the coconuts clank together in perfect harmony. This Winter will see Miami acclaimed as the greatest center of variety of year-round sports of any city in the world."

"Miami will put a highlight on the Winter season program of 1938-39 with such events as the new Miami $10,000 open, Dec. 15-18; opening of the tropical ice hockey league, Dec. 10; Orange Bowl football game, Jan. 2; Miami All-American air races, Jan. 6-8; Miami deep sea fishing tournament, Jan. 15; Sir Thomas Lipton memorial cup yacht races, Feb. 11; $20,000 Flamingo Stakes at Hialeah Park race track, Feb. 25; Dixie amateur golf tournament, Feb. 27; the $50,000 Widener challenge cup horse race, Mar. 4; the Biscayne Bay speedboat regatta, Mar. 18-19, and the Miami-to-Nassau 184-mile ocean sailing race, Feb. 14."

"The season opened last night when brother rabbit jumped out of his box in the dog races but let me warn you and the other lucky folks headed down this way: You'll need overcoats and sweaters for the ice hockey matches, tropical suits for the golf and tennis events and no doubt flashlights to cover the night-time golf tournaments. Yes, sir, we're not even losing track of darkness down this way. Night golf is in Miami to stay and you might tell the duffers. Being a good counter, I've taken eight shots per round off my game just by playing nights."

Yes, sir, Miami's going to make good even if it has to freeze to death.

Navy To Continue Coaching System

Ends Wild Speculation as To Gridiron Mentor at Academy

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 2. (AP)—All was quiet on the Severn tonight, as the Navy Athletic Department's flat announcement that the graduate coaching system would be continued at the Naval Academy ended wild speculation on next year's varsity football coach.

Harry Stuhldrehr, Wisconsin, and Jock Sutherland, Pitt mentor, were mentioned prominently along with other "big name" coaches in the three-day conjectural spree, but the guessing games abruptly ended with the announcement that a naval officer would again be at the helm of the 1939 grid squad.

Lieut. H. J. (Hank) Hardwick, for two years head coach, also ended rumors that he had received orders for sea duty with a formal announcement that he had received no orders and did not know where he would be assigned next year.

Hardwick's fellow officers at the Naval Academy said there was a concerted movement to persuade Hardwick to remain in charge of the Navy football team a third year. Members of the football team have made it known informally that they would like to see the 1938 skipper return.

'Biscuit To Train At Columbia, S. C.

Baltimore, Dec. 2. (AP)—Seabiscuit, pride of the Charles S. Howard Stables, was scheduled for a trip south to Columbia, S. C., today instead of a long jaunt to the west coast as had been planned.

Seabiscuit's trainer, Tom Smith, said the recent storm had prevented the horse from getting workouts. "He needs exercise and needs it badly," he asserted. The entire Howard Stable will be shipped to Columbia, where training will be resumed. The horses may be kept in the south until early spring, Howard indicated.

Mauch Twins, Western Feature Garden Program

Those two most valuable ingredients of motion picture entertainment—humor and excitement—are both present in copious measure in "Penrod's Double Trouble," and therefore it won its audience completely when it received its local showing yesterday at the Garden Theatre.

The third in the series of productions based by the Warner Bros. studio on Booth Tarkington's most famous boy character, "Penrod's Double Trouble" is also the second in which the uncanny similar Mauch twins are co-starred, and again they demonstrate that two heads are better than one—if they're such clever little heads as those of the charming Mauch boys.

William Boyd stars in the co-feature, "Hopalong Cassidy Returns."

"Intoxicating"

When we say "intoxicating" we refer, of course, to Olympe Bradna, and not the drink she's so slyly sipping. Paramount's vivacious French star has the lead role opposite Ray Milland in "Say It In French," now showing at the Strand Theatre.

Virginia spent most of her school years in Fargo, North Dakota. Her first appearance on the screen was in "The Love Parade," in which she played in support of Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald. Among the successful pictures in which she has since appeared are "Winner Take All," "The Miracle Man," "The Mighty Barnum," "Escapade," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Bad Man of Brimstone," "Yellow Jack" and many others.

Her favorite recreations are the theatre, dancing and bridge. She reads a good deal and has travelled extensively. Virginia is not the least bit superstitious and she violates all the pet jinxes of the theatre world.

Five feet, six and a half inches tall, Virginia weighs 128 pounds. She has naturally blonde hair and large blue eyes. Never diets, but keeps svelte and physically fit by swimming, tennis and riding.

In "There Goes My Heart," which is Roach's first production under his new releasing contract with United Artists, Virginia essays her first comedy role.

'Comet Over Broadway' Opens Today

"Comet Over Broadway," Faith Baldwin's Cosmopolitan Magazine story, which was adapted for the screen by Mark Hellinger and Robert Buckner, comes to the Liberty Theatre today.

With Kay Francis in the starring role, the fine cast also includes Ian Hunter, John Litel, Donald Crisp, Minna Gombel, the now 9-year-old Sybil Cooper. The production was directed by Busby Berkeley.

The story carries Kay from a stage struck girlhood in a small middle western town through disheartening years of playing in traveling tent shows, burlesque and vaudeville, then recounts her first moves toward success in the more respectable stratum of the theatre, next covers an interlude in England, during which she becomes a reigning stage favorite there, and finally shows the night of her great triumph—where she is destined to become a "Comet Over Broadway."

That professional progress, however, is only the background of the real drama in the life of the woman depicted by Kay. Along the way, Kay has seen her husband go

At the time of her greatest success professionally, she learns that her husband's release from jail can be effected, if she can raise the necessary sum. The decision that she finally makes forms the potent dramatic climax of "Comet Over Broadway."

Merry Society Comedy Teams Bradna, Milland

A comedy-romantic team which promises to make screen history heads the cast of Paramount's hilarious new society story, "Say It In French." It is formed by Ray Milland, fresh from his dramatic triumph in "Men With Wings," and Hollywood's Parisian bombshell, petite Olympe Bradna, who are seen together for the first time in the hit showing at the Strand today and tomorrow.

Miss Bradna, whom critics hailed as the A-1 star discovery of the past few years, has been out of action for nearly a year because Paramount executives found nothing exactly suited to her unique talents until "Say It In French" came along. A native of Paris, where she

'Spys' Put Out To End Speeding Near Schools

Motor Club Warns Fast Drivers They Will Be Checked On

A drive on speeders who ignore school signs and endanger the lives of schoolboy patrolmen and the children they are guarding was to be launched today by the Western Maryland Motor club.

Volunteer "spys" will be stationed at LaVale today and later at Lindernville to jot down the license numbers of offenders who whiz by them, P. H. Rockwell, president-manager of the club announced.

"Spys" are necessary, Mr. Rockwell pointed out, because motorists slow down whenever they spot a State police car near a school, "indicating they know what they should do when they pass a school."

Police Will Get Names
The "spys" will turn in to State police the license numbers of all offenders, and the police will issue a reprimanding letter and charge the offense against the driver's license record in Baltimore, Mr. Rockwell warned.

"The club is reluctant to take such action, but we feel that it is absolutely necessary in order to give the proper protection, not only to the school children, but to our schoolboy patrolmen as well," Mr. Rockwell said.

School Zones Marked
The Motor club, which is an affiliate of the American Automobile Association, sponsors the schoolboy patrol. The club has marked school zones with slow signs painted on the road and with metal signs at the side of the road, Mr. Rockwell said.

"Spys" will be on duty at Lindernville just as soon as he checks and makes sure signs have been erected there, he said. Signs will be placed immediately, if they are not already there, he promised.

County Builders Have Big Month

Thirty building permits for construction totaling more than $10,000 were issued last month by the Allegany county board of commissioners.

Twenty of the permits were for dwellings or dwelling-additions. Five were for garages.

One was for a new fire hall and engine house for the McCool volunteer fire department.

A permit was issued yesterday to Charles C. Mooses for construction of a one-story frame dwelling on Hancock road. Cost of the work was placed at $400.

Deaths

Angus M. Walker
Angus M. Walker, former B. & O. employe here, died last night at his home at Wardsville, W. Va. He was 65.

Mr. Walker retired from B. & O. service a year ago and moved to Wardsville, his birthplace. Before his retirement he was watchman at the Bedford street crossing. He was a member of the Moose lodge at Westernport.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Bessie Orndorff Walker, of Wardsville, and the following sons and daughters: Floyd, of Toledo, Norman, of Wardsville, Mrs. Charles Simms, of Mountain Lake Park, and Mrs. George Hadrá, Lynn and Heyl D., all three of Cumberland.

Mrs. Mary E. Breighner
Mrs. Mary E. Breighner, wife of Martin J. Breighner, died yesterday at her home, 139 Elder street, after an illness of a year. She was 69 years old.

Mrs. Breighner was the daughter of the late Adam and Mary Anna Bloom.

Surviving, besides her husband, are four sons, Ray, John, Welton and Ralph Breighner, all of Cumberland; two daughters, Mrs. Mary Koontz and Mrs. Wilson Wagner, of Cumberland; four brothers, Simon, Andrew, William and Charles Bloom, all of Charming, Pa.; a sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Staley, of Clear Spring; seventeen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

William E. Talley
William E. Talley, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio, died at his home there yesterday. He was 62 years old.

Mr. Talley, a former tin mill worker, was son of the late Stephen R. and Eleanor (Penn) Talley.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Warner Freeland and Miss Nellie V. Talley; a brother, Raymond H. Talley, all of Cumberland; and a daughter, Mrs. Frank Laughman, of Martin's Ferry.

The body will be brought to the home of Mrs. Freeland, 3 Browning street, today.

George Alexander Davis
George Alexander Davis, co-owner of the Davis Brothers Tobacco Store, died last night at his home at 930 Broadway, Frostburg, where he had been ill for two months. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Davis was the son of the late John and Sarah Tennant and a native of Middletown, about two and a half miles from Frostburg, where he worked as a coal miner for 12 years before moving to Frostburg. He served as assistant postmaster of Frostburg for several terms. He was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Mountain Lodge No. 99, A. F. and A. M.

Surviving is a brother, James F. Davis, of Frostburg, his associate in business. Miss Agnes T. Davis, retired school teacher who died Aug. 16, was a sister.

Housewife Wins 'Stand Up' Strike

This scene is empty of workmen because Mrs. Sylvia Lippel objected to erection of a guard fence in front of her home on the 700 block curve on Washington street. She stood in city workmen's way until Police Chief Oscar Eyerman escorted her off the curb street. Commissioner Reynolds then halted the work to think things over.

The half of the fence which had already been erected (but not in front of the Lippel house) can be seen at the left of the picture. The X marks the spot where Mrs. Lippel stood and kept the first post hole from being dug.

Mrs. Lippel Gets in Workers' Way To Prevent Guard Rail Erection

Mrs. Sylvia B. Lippel, wife of Attorney Clarence B. Lippel, took a dramatic Barbara Pritchie stand in front of her Washington street home yesterday morning to stop city officials from erecting a guard fence on the dangerous curve there.

Mrs. Lippel took her stand between sidewalk and street on the very spot where City Engineer Ralph L. Rizer had directed his men to dig the first post hole.

And there she stood—until Police Chief Oscar Eyerman entered the argument and, as he put it, "gently assisted Mrs. Lippel out of the way."

Reynolds Says Stop
Mr. Rizer was all for going ahead with building the road guard—City Council approved its construction weeks ago—but Edgar H. Reynolds, commissioner for streets and sewers, arrived at the scene and gave an order to cease and desist.

For the moment, embattled Mrs. Lippel won her victory, and Engineer Rizer ordered his crew to leave from in front of the Lippel home and go to painting the 56-foot section of the guard rail which they had already installed further around the curve.

Commissioner Uncertain
"Work has temporarily been stopped," said Commissioner Reynolds last night. "Saturday is a holiday anyway. I haven't made up my mind yet whether we will finish the fence or not."

Although he did not say so, Commissioner Reynolds is expected to dump the controversy into the lap of City Council Monday morning.

Mr. Lippel has been a frequent visitor in Council in recent months, complaining that the many accidents on the curve in front of his home make it an undesirable place to live. Screams of victims disturbed his family at night, and they were often suddenly awakened by loud crashes, he complained.

Work Half Done
Mr. and Mrs. Lippel want something done about that curve, but they don't want a guard rail in front of their property.

The city planned to put up 112 feet of the guard, which consists of a heavy strip of steel fastened to posts about two feet high. The steel strip is "springy," and is supposed to throw cars which can't make the turn back into the road.

Half of the guard is already up in front of the home occupied by Attorney and Mrs. Robert G. Yancey at 711 Washington street.

Mr. Yancey declared he doesn't like the guard put in front of his home, either. "I'm glad I don't own the place," he said.

Chief's Presence Accidental
Mrs. Lippel had words with Engineer Rizer as he appeared on the job several days ago.

But not until Mr. Rizer was ready to put his men to work in front of her home at 11 a. m. yesterday did she take her stand over the post-hole-to-be.

Chief Eyerman was not called for the special purpose of assisting Mrs. Lippel from the spot, but had arrived to confer with Mr. Rizer on the question of putting red reflector buttons on the posts.

"What we should have done," the chief declared laughingly afterward, "would have been to start digging all the holes at once."

Mr. Rizer is all for going ahead with the project, now that Council has approved it and the materials and the workmen are on hand.

Lippel Says Fence Not Needed
"Mr. Lippel has said many times he's afraid a car will come over the curb and injure his children at play. He'll feel pretty bad if this fence doesn't go up and that does happen some day," said Mr. Rizer.

The Lippels insist now, Mr. Rizer said, that the guard is not needed in front of their house because cars don't leave the streets on that part of the turn.

Even if the fence is completed as scheduled, there will be a gap in it at the entrance to the driveway which runs between the Yancey and Lippel homes.

A car which struck the end post at this gap would not glance off.

Yesterday when reporters appeared on the scene, Mrs. Lippel leaned out of an upstairs window and called:

"Look at that end post. Wait until somebody hits that. He'll be killed."

Incident Closed, Says Mrs. Lippel

Mrs. Lippel refused to discuss the incident of her removal from the curb strip by Chief Eyerman.

"It's all over now," she said.

When it was suggested that the city might proceed with the disrupted project next week, Mrs. Lippel declared: "We'll see about that."

The changes which the Lippels and other neighbors want on the curve is its widening and banking. The sharp curve is made worse now because it is banked the wrong way.

City Solicitor Charles Z. Heskett has twice been authorized to acquire part of the vacant lot on the other side of the street so it can be widened, but nothing has come of it yet.

The erection of the guard fence has been the city's first tangible answer to the neighborhood's protests so far.

Two Men Land In Hospital After Spills

One Falls From Ladder, Other Hurt When Train Stops

A railroadman and a milkman were admitted to local hospitals yesterday after both lost their footing while at work.

James E. Banger, 22, 11½ Fifth street, was injured about the head when he fell from a ladder while disconnecting overhead pipes at the Liberty Milk Company plant where he is employed.

He was taken to Memorial hospital where he was to undergo an X-ray examination to determine if his skull was fractured or not.

Edward E. Harman, 45, of Martinsburg, W. Va., a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad flagman, was taken to Allegany hospital after he, too, suffered head injuries when his train stopped suddenly in the local yards and he was thrown against the wall of the caboose.

Both hospital reported their patients as "sleeping comfortably" last night.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Parker, of Rideley, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

First Aid Saves Celanese Employee's Life; Saw Cuts Arm

Prompt action by fellow employees and first aid attendants at the Celanese plant probably saved Joseph Klosterman's life yesterday.

Several veins in Klosterman's left forearm were severed yesterday as the arm was caught in a mechanical saw in the service department at the Celanese plant.

He was rushed to the first aid room, where a tourniquet was applied to stop the flow of blood, and then brought to Allegany hospital in the Celanese ambulance.

His condition was reported as satisfactory last night, and he is expected to be discharged today.

Klosterman lives in Frostburg.

Fort Hill Student Knows Her Potatoes; And Tells About 'Em

Modern misses, it has often been said, can't hold a candle to their grandmothers when it comes to cooking up the dishes that delight a man's heart.

That's a matter of opinion. But it's a sure fact that the girls in the senior home economics class at Fort Hill high school know their recipes and also how to make familiar foods taste new and twice as appetizing.

They're willing to pass on the information, too — every Saturday on the grocery page of the News.

Each Saturday a different member of the class will give a series of recipes to meet some specific problem of the average housewife.

Turn to page 7 today and get Student Edwards Vannoy's up-to-the-minute ideas on preparing potatoes.

Forty Years Ago

A bachelor in Mt. Pleasant, Frederick county, advertised for the following kind of a wife: "Light hair, blue eyes, good looking, tall, very talkative, delights in attending all the plays at the hall, weight not over 150 or under 75, good baker, also good cook, age not over 30 or under 17, money no objection. Correspondence solicited. Address Box 12."

Sousa's band played before a large audience in the Academy of Music. The audience was disappointed when an announcement was made that the great director was sick, but very well pleased with Arthur Pryor, trombonist, as substitute director.

"Georgia Camp Meeting" and "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" were among the encores. A soprano soloist sang "When the Roses Bloom."

Locomotive Starts Fire, Policeman Spots It

The alert eye of Patrolman George W. Deffenbaugh spotted a fire in a fourth-floor attic window sill of the Arlington hotel on Baltimore street last night.

Firemen from Companies 1 and 3 were on the scene almost immediately, and reported the only damage was a broken window. Firemen said the fire was probably caused by a spark from a locomotive.

Marriage Pool Winners Too Young, Clerk Rules, So Losers Are Wed

A marriage "lottery" in which the winner ended up by being the loser was disclosed at the court house yesterday.

Two young Pennsylvania couples breezily entered the office of Clerk of the Court Robert Jackson in late afternoon.

One of the couples asked for a marriage license.

The customary question as to the ages of the would-be bride and groom revealed that the youth was under age and could not obtain a license without his parents' consent.

Both couples left the office somewhat crestfallen.

Hurry Back
A few moments later, however, the other couple returned to make application for a license for themselves. The man gave his age as 23, the girl as 19.

Some one made a remark about their making up their minds in an awful hurry.

Simeon W. Green Heads New Board Of Commissioners

County Officials Hear Their First Kick, Pass It On

Two county officials lost their jobs yesterday as the newly-elected board of county commissioners held its initial meeting, elected a president and made four appointments.

Simeon W. Green, of Frostburg, was elected to the presidency of the board, other members of which are James Holmes, Lonaconing, and Harry Matheny, Cumberland.

Walter C. Capper was named attorney to the board, succeeding David W. Sloan, and C. Nice Wilkinson Jr. was named sanitary inspector, succeeding Walter E. Kline.

Dr. W. Fred Williams was reappointed county physician, while John H. Kemp was renamed superintendent of Sylvan Retreat, county insane asylum.

Old Board Adjourns
The first formal meeting of the new board was preceded by a session of the retiring board, which adjourned "sine die" after being called to order by President A. Charles Stewart. Other members were Mr. Holmes, who was reelected, and Nelson W. Russell.

The former commissioners, watched by Thomas P. Richards, re-elected clerk, took the oath of office before Clerk of the Court Robert Jackson.

In addition to organizing and making the four appointments, the new board also heard a plea for repairs to the Ford's Crossing road, which connects with the Cash Valley road between Mt. Savage and Corriganville.

Petitioners Appeal
The petitioners, headed by Frank Studenic, Edgar Hardin, and Mrs. Rebecca Mauk, were referred by the board to the State highway department.

While a small part of the road is county-maintained, the greater part of it is State-maintained, it was said.

The board still has about 26 appointments to make.

While these are scheduled to be made at the first meeting in January, it is possible some of them may be made earlier.

On the agenda for Tuesday's meeting is the opening of bids on the county's $600,000 bond issue for the million-dollar school building program.

The construction is being partially financed by PWA funds.

Nearly 50 inquiries concerning the issue have been received from banking houses in New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati, it was said by Clerk Richards.

Police Declare Crash Unreported, Victim Says Yes

Woman Hit by Automobile Which Climbed Curb Confined to Home

Although police insisted last night that they had no report on an accident in which an auto came over the curb and struck a woman, the victim said last night that driver of the car had visited her "with papers to prove he had reported the accident to police."

Mrs. Frances V. Daubach, 322 Baltimore avenue, said she was struck by the car as she left a Baltimore avenue grocery. The car ran over the curb to avoid hitting another car, knocking her down, she said.

She is confined to her home suffering from bruises, with the full extent of her injuries not reported. She stated the driver who hit her had visited her several times to see how she was.

Police last night maintained they have no report of the accident and never have had one.

Held for Driving Drunk
Colonel Brown, of Lonaconing, was committed to the county jail yesterday afternoon in default of bond of $112 to await a hearing on charges of drunken and reckless driving.

Brown was arrested by State Trooper Carl G. Storm after he ran off the road into a ditch and hit a fence on Piper's hill, near Lonaconing.

Two Drivers Fined

George Gurtler, 440 Pennsylvania avenue, was fined $25 in Police court yesterday for careless driving.

Louis Rinker, of Wellersburg, Pa., was docked $10 and costs in People's Court for driving without a license.

on High Roads Low Roads and By-Ways

Seven may be a lucky number for some people, but don't tell Emory F. Showman that it's lucky.

He tells us he went hunting Thursday as the deer season opened and came back empty-handed despite the fact he was within shooting distance of seven deer.

He was out on a limb (no double meaning intended) when he spotted a big buck.

"He was so close I could count the points on his antlers," Emory declared.

"Just as I drew a bead on him, a doe came between me and my quarry."

"Then, while I waited the chance for a shot, five more deer ambled up, among them a couple of more doe. There were then seven."

"With the doe constantly getting between me and the bucks, I never did get a shot."

So, don't tell Emory seven's a lucky number.

Western Maryland's renown as a deer-hunting paradise must have traveled far.

Clerk of the Court Bob Jackson's office sold out of non-resident licenses the other day, selling three at one stroke.

Two Carolinians and an Ohioan bought non-resident hunting licenses the other day.

They were willing to shell out $15.00 for only four days' hunting. Incidentally, those three cleaned the clerk's office out, a total of ten non-resident licenses having been sold this year.

Sale of county hunting licenses set an all-time high, recent sales having brought it to 5,171. A total of 900-odd State-wide licenses has been disposed of.

Col. George Henderson is a lawyer, not a doctor, but he's circulating a mighty good joke about rigor mortis. He told it to the Rotarians, so maybe he'll tell it to the Rotarians.

County Deer Kill Mounts to 25

With 25 deer reported shot in Allegany county the first two days of the season, the total is expected to be materially increased today as hunters invade the woods in greater numbers than yesterday or Thursday.

Deputy Game Warden Joseph A. Minke reported ten deer slain yesterday. Fifteen were shot the opening day of the season Thursday.

No accidents had been reported in the county as the second day of the season closed last night.

Noting that few arrests had been made so far for hunting without a license, Mr. Minke warned hunters to be sure and carry their papers with them.

Failure to have the license in possession makes a hunter subject to a fine, he said.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press reported that the deer kill for the first two days of West Virginia's open season ran over the 400 mark last night as hunters dragged in at least 152 additional carcasses.

No injuries or deaths were reported after the first day's accidental killing of Lee Hoak, 20, of near Leo. Hoak was killed when he fell from a stump and his gun discharged.

Mineral county reported three deer bagged; Hampshire reported five.

Chamber of Commerce Discusses Taxation

About 35 members of the Chamber of Commerce held a round table discussion on the mounting cost of government last night following a dinner at the YMCA.

The conclusion was reached that the citizens of the country must be made to realize just how much of every dollar they earn goes into the government's hands, Harold W. Smith, Chamber secretary, said.

If the people knew this, they would see that their representatives did something about it, Mr. Smith said the conferees felt.
